DR. HYDE'S LAWYER MOVES JURORS AND AUDIENCE TO TEARS

Reference to Wife Makes 2 of 12 Men, Many Spectators and Mrs. Swope Weep.

CASE TO JURY FRIDAY

TOXICOLOGIST SCORED

Attorney Declares Dr. Vaughan Is Man Chosen to Swear Client's Life Away.

From a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 12.—Two jurors were in tears when Frank P. Walsh, chief of counsel for Dr. B. Clark Hyde, turned and pointed dramatically to Mrs. Hyde, who sat weeping beside her husband and asked whether she could have been an accomplice in the murder of Col. T. H. Swope.

Not the jurors alone, but Mrs. Logan O. Swope and many spectators wept at the picture Walsh drew of Mrs. Hyde as a martyr to the insinuations of lawyers hired by her mother. Walsh's argument, the first in Hyde's behalf, was devoted more to sympathetic reference to the loyal wife and to her testimony than to the other evidence in the case.

Walsh referred to Dr. Victor C. Vaughan, the noted toxicological expert, who found poison in Col. Swope's viscera, as "Dr. Hyde's selected executioner—the man chosen to swear his life away." He declared that the strychnine found in Col. Swope's liver accumulated there from the iron, quinine and strychnine tonic the millionaire took.

Walsh spoke without notes, and his voice rang through the open doors into the corridors. A great crowd packed the courtroom and hallways.

After dwelling at length on the insufficiency of circumstantial evidence, Walsh declared that he had no intention of assailing Mrs. Logan O. Swope, but that she had been ill advised.

"If ever there was a time when she needed disinterested, unpaid advice," he said, "it was when she had lost Moss Hunton, upon whose strong arm she had leaned so long, and had lost a son. But the man to whom she turned in her trouble charged a fee for advising her."

Acts of Paxton Assailed.

This was a reference to John G. Paxton, an executor of the estate, who acted as Mrs. Swope's agent in employing experts to test the viscera.

Would Mrs. Hyde have clung so loyally to her husband, Walsh demanded, if he had been guilty?

If Hyde were guilty, then Frances Hyde was the accomplice in a monstrous crime. Turning and pointing to Mrs. Hyde, who was in tears, he asserted that her devotion to her husband was in itself a proof of innocence.

Criticising the employment of special counsel to assist the Prosecuting Attorney, Walsh declared that the life of no man should be jeopardized by the zeal of paid lawyers, other than a prosecutor under oath.

Walsh assailed the testimony of Nurse Pearl V. Keller, who was one of the most damaging witnesses to the defense, and walked from one juror to another, leaning over and addressing him directly, as he took up one point after another in which her statements conflicted with the testimony of others, particularly of Dr. and Mrs. Hyde.

The wife of Stewart Fleming, an executor of the estate, died at her home in Columbia, Tenn., the day after Moss Hunton died. If she had happened to die in the Swope home, another charge of murder would have been placed against Dr. Hyde, Walsh said.

Declares Hyde Loved Swope.

Dr. Hyde loved Col. Swope, Walsh declared, and was one of the few persons who regularly visited the eccentric and high-tempered old millionaire. And that Col. Swope loved Dr. Hyde was known, he declared, by his gift of a $16,000 home to Frances, and by his confiding in Hyde when ill.

Walsh made much of the composure Dr. Hyde has shown throughout the trial and declared that it was the mien of an innocent man.

"When Mr. Conkling was unfair enough to put to Dr. Hyde an insinuating question, 'Did you take the precaution to take poison along with you to New York?' said Walsh, "was Dr. Hyde's manner that of a guilty man? No, he looked Mr. Conkling straight in the eye, and made a manly answer."

"'Mr. Conkling,' he said, 'I do not like that question.'"

"Was that the reply of a guilty man?"

Walsh told how capable and sympathetic Mrs. Hyde was in attending the

These scenes at place where the Mississippi boat Saltillo was wrecked were taken twelve hours after the disaster by a Post-Dispatch staff photographer. The bull, whose carcass is surrounded by the crew, caused a great deal of trouble on board. The two persons shown in the picture are survivors.

Smoke Obscures Pilot's View; He Loses Channel and Craft Is Swept on Rocks.

HULL TAKES FIRE AS THOSE ON BOARD SEEK SAFETY

List of the Dead Also Includes Mrs. A. McD. Patterson, Who As Miss Bronson Was Educated in St. Louis—Craft Total Loss, it Is Believed.

Federal navigation officials will at once begin an investigation into the astonishing and, in late years, unprecedented, loss of life which attended the sinking of the steamer City of Saltillo. Thirteen persons, seven of them passengers, were drowned within a dozen feet of the bank when, in the intense darkness, the gang plank, or "stage" on which they had crowded, struck a tree, overturned and threw them into the Mississippi.

Capt. Harry C. Crane said Thursday that the passengers crowded on the tilting gangplank by his permission as the pilot swung the boat toward land. His reason for permitting them to be there was the need for haste in clearing the boat, whose cabin deck was under water. All the lives lost were those of persons on the gangplank.

"Women and children first!" was the captain's cry as the passengers and crew gathered Wednesday night on the narrow ledge of safety on the upper cabin of the listing boat, which had struck a boulder very near the Missouri shore at Glen Park, Jefferson County. Fire, which had broken out in the rear, and had been extinguished by the rising water, added to the haste and the excitement of the passengers.

Following his order, the first ones to climb upon the "stage" were women, one of them with a 2-year-old child. Men were behind them, most of them members of the crew. They went, the captain says, to aid the women and child, and would have returned to help others had the "stage" formed the connection without mishap. The darkness and the rapid listing of the boat caused the failure to land the stage, which is safely landed scores of times on every trip.

SURVIVORS TO BE WITNESSES.

J. J. Dunn, supervising inspector of hulls and boilers for the St. Louis district, announced Thursday that the survivors of the crew would be summoned to his office in the old Federal Building as soon as they return to the city. Capt. Archibald Gordon, inspector of hulls, and W. J. McDonald, inspector of boilers, will co-operate with him in the inquiry. They will endeavor to learn whether the boat was properly handled, and on whom, if on anyone, the blame should rest.

The life-saving apparatus of the Saltillo was inspected Wednesday in the St. Louis harbor, and was found in perfect condition.

D. J. Gaughen, first mate, told a Post-Dispatch reporter Thursday that the alarm on deck was greatly increased by the fire, which was seen by the passengers before the water put it out. "My God! She's on fire, too!" cried a woman as the flame burst from the boiler room.

Smoke from a lime kiln, hiding the river's surface from the pilot, caused him to lose the channel, and the steamer ran on a rock hidden by the high water.

Only the bodies of Mrs. Isaac T. Rhea, wife of the boat's owner, and Daniel C. Taylor, the negro second porter, had been recovered at 2 p. m. Thursday. There was no hope that any of the others had been saved.

The wreck occurred at 9 p. m. Wednesday, two hours after the Saltillo had left the St. Louis wharf for Waterloo, Ala., and while a dance was in progress on the cabin deck.

The drowned passengers include the wife and one daughter of Capt. Isaac T. Rhea, president of the St. Louis & Tennessee River Packet Co., Mrs. Archibald McDougall Patterson, a near relative of the family of E. O. Stanard of St. Louis, and her 2-year-old son, Archie Jr., and women and men from St. Louis and Nashville, Tenn. Fowler Post, one of the drowned members of the crew, was a member of the Fowler family of Paducah, owners of a line of Ohio River boats.

WILL TRY TO RAISE WRECKED STEAMER.

The Saltillo lay on its side Thursday, almost against the bank, and the Erastus Wells was dispatched from St. Louis to make an attempt to raise it.

The channel follows the west shore closely near Glen Park, which is 18 miles south of St. Louis, and the mountainous countryside slopes down into a rocky bluff at the bank.

The channel lies just outside the row of boulders which, at the present high stage of the river, is concealed by the water. It was the high water and the heavy smoke from the stacks of the Glencoe Lime and Cement Co. which prevented the pilot, Ed Fell, from keeping the steamer and drove him on the boulders. A number of the passengers had planned to arise at dawn to view the comet, and so retired to their staterooms soon after supper. Some of the younger people remained in the cabin dancing, with Miss Gertrude Sheehan of 4635 Natural Bridge road at the piano and John McIntosh of Maplewood playing the violin.

The dancers were suddenly thrown against the cabin wall and the stateroom doors as the boat, striking the boulder, lurched and began to sink. The music went on, and the pianists and the violinist continued until, a moment later, the rushing water covered their shoetops.

Members of the crew and men passengers rushed from staterooms to cabin room, arousing those who had retired. Capt. Crane, aware of the great danger, urged that passengers make all possible haste in getting off the boat. The boat was dark, as the flooding of the engine room had put out the electric lights. The pilot worked desperately to make a landing.

The land was only a few feet away, and it seemed certain that the members of the crew, who knew the steep descent of these banks, and at all hours of night, would do it in this case in such a manner as to [illegible]

THOUSANDS VIEW GREAT WARSHIP LAUNCHED TODAY

Most Powerful Dreadnaught Leaves Ways at Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Flying the white-starred ensign of the United States Navy at her stem, the stars and stripes at her stern and a string of gay signal pennants along the 520 feet of her deck line, the battleship Florida, the biggest of the American dreadnaughts built thus far, was successfully launched at the Brooklyn navy yards today in the presence of the Vice-President of the United States, the Secretary of the Navy, the naval attaches of all the powers and a crowd of 50,000 enthusiasts whom intermittent rains had failed to keep away.

The 21,825-ton fighting leviathan, built to carry 10 12-inch guns—the concentrated big gun fire of five ordinary battleships—glided down the ways to the strains of the "Star-Spangled Banner," played by the Navy Yard and Twenty-Ninth Infantry bands, while the crowd cheered and hundreds of river craft tooted their noisy welcome.

Her lesser sisters, moored or anchored in the Navy Yard, the Rhode Island, Nebraska, Connecticut, Yankton and Hancock, dipped their colors and fired a salute of 21 guns as the monster fighting machine reached the waters.

Preceding the arrival of Vice-President Sherman, Secretary of the Navy George von L. Meyer and the other distinguished guests, an army of workmen had wedged up the battleship and removed the side shores and cribbing amidships. As soon as the tide was declared favorable, word to remove the 120 keel blocks was given, and Naval Constructor Baxter took his station at the stern of the Florida. The christening party, headed by Miss Elizabeth Fleming, daughter of a former governor of Florida and sponsor for the big battleship and comprising Gov. Gilchrist and Senators Taliaferro and Fletcher of Florida, took up their position on the special platform near the nose of the big ship, and Miss Fleming and her 11 girl attendants, six representing Florida and five the navy, moved up to the rail.

There was an ominous creaking, the sliding and permanent ways slowly drew apart and Miss Fleming sent the champagne bottle crashing against the ship's side.

"A cloudless morn in May," promptly replied the one who keeps an eye on the weather map.

"That's about right."

"What I don't like about this climate is that it is too much like a New England dinner—all mixed up. We had our May weather in March, our March weather in April, and now in May we are having a scrambled meteorologic mess which it is hard to classify."

"Still, they say, every cloud has a silver lining," said No. 1, dropping back into quotation marks.

HEINZE EJECTED FROM COURT

NEW YORK, May 12.—A sensation was created during the summing up in the trial of F. Augustus Heinze this afternoon when Arthur P. Heinze, brother of the defendant, was ejected from the courtroom for having, it was alleged, disturbed the proceedings by passing the lie to United States District Attorney Wise during the latter's argument.

HOUSE VOTES TO OPEN COAL LAND

WASHINGTON, May 12.—A bill providing for the opening to agricultural settlement and development of the surface of lands which have been classified as coal lands was passed by the House today.

The measure would reserve about seventy million acres as coal lands, to be worked on the surface for the purpose of agriculture.

MOORE WOULD VOTE FOR WIFE IF SHE RAN FOR PRESIDENT

Drops Business in St. Louis to See Her Preside Over Cincinnati Convention.

Philip N. Moore dropped his business as a mining engineer in St. Louis and went to Cincinnati to see his wife preside over the tenth biennial meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs of the United States, of which she is president.

"I just wanted to size her up," he said after the first session in Music Hall Wednesday night. "I wanted to see what kind of a leader she is and how she would act under fire.

"I must say that I was amply repaid for my trouble. Any woman who can preside over an organization such as this, representing the aims, the ambitions and the highest thoughts and resolves of 800,000 of the most intelligent women in this whole country, is equal to any task.

"If any woman is ever to be President of the United States, and if Mrs. Philip N. Moore decides to run, she can count on my vote."

The real work of the meeting begun Thursday, when the delegates from the clubs of each State met as State groups to outline their work for the years ensuing.

Mrs. Everett W. Pattison of St. Louis, as chairman, held a meeting of the art department Thursday, to determine not only the work to be done at the present convention, but during the next two years.

Mrs. E. M. Shepard of Springfield, Mo., made an impassioned address Wednesday in reply to a suggestion by Mrs. Frank N. Shick of Wyoming that the annual revenue fee should be raised from 25 to 50 cents.

Her speech, which was vigorously applauded, was that the effort should be, not to raise more money by increasing the assessment of the present members, but to get more members and let the fee remain as it is. Instead of having a membership of 800,000, she declared, the federated clubs of America should have 5,000,000, and that, with proper effort, this number could be obtained.

SURVIVORS TELL OF DEATH IN DARKNESS AND MEN'S HEROISM

Miss Gertrude Sheehan, 19 years old, who played the piano on the cabin deck of the Saltillo until the water suddenly surged in and covered her shoe tops, was the first passenger to step from the Iron Mountain De Soto accommodation train as it reached the Union Station Thursday morning, with a number of survivors on board. Her hands were empty.

On the platform her father, Patrolman John Sheehan, and her brother, Frank, awaited her.

"It was horrible!" she exclaimed as they embraced her. "It was my first trip on the river, and it will be my last. I lost everything.

"I was playing a waltz, with Mr. McIntosh playing the violin," she continued, "when the boat seemed to go wrong some way, and we heard the crew shouting and the timbers creaking and cracking.

"I didn't want to show I was scared, for I didn't suppose anything was really the matter, but I saw that some of the others, who knew the river, were frightened. Someone said we had hit a sandbar. But I kept on playing, and so did Mr. McIntosh, and all of a sudden the water rushed right over our feet.

"Then—oh, it was awful. The boat started to turn over and the water was above our waists almost before we could move.

"I seized a pillar on the cabin deck, passengers off. So the members of the crew did not hinder the more eager ones who stepped out on the plank while it was still tilted upward slightly, and some of the crew took their places there, to be able to care for the passengers as they landed.

But instead of the expected easy landing of the stage, the heavy boards struck a tree trunk, and those who had made their way toward its middle fell, with shrieks, into the water as it turned partly over, spilling them.

ONES SAVED REMAINED BEHIND.

Those saved were the ones who had remained behind longest, some of them not able at first to get out of the high water on the cabin deck. Some had fled to the "texas" above, but their position there proved equally dangerous, as the boat was tipping over rapidly. They got to land in boats and on planks thrown from land.

Some of the 39 negro roustabouts swam to shore, but the passengers, some of them heavily clad, others in night clothes, perished in their efforts to make the short swim against the overpowering current, with the suction of the sinking boat working against them.

There were 27 passengers, and 54 employes of the boat, including, beside the roustabouts, the captain, two mates, three clerks, two engineers, four firemen, two stewards, six stevedores, the carpenter and three watchmen.

"Five feet more," said Capt. Crane Thursday, "and everyone would have been saved." That distance, he said, in the landing of the stage would have meant safety.

Mrs. Rhea, whose body was the only one recovered before morning, was believed to be alive when taken from the water, but more than an hour's work failed to revive her. Of her two daughters, one, Louise, was saved, the other, Ann, perished with the mother.

Mrs. Patterson, with her two little children, had occupied a stateroom adjoining that of her mother, Mrs. E. P. Bronson of Chester, Ill., who was accompanying her to Mrs. Patterson's home in Tennessee.

When they were first awakened, Mrs. Bronson and her daughter had divided the care of the children, Mrs. Patterson taking the 2-year-old boy, while Mrs. Bronson took the infant girl. Mrs. Patterson went ahead with little Archie, and was on the stage when it overturned. Mrs. Bronson and her grandchild gained the shore later only to learn that the others had been lost.

Mrs. Patterson was formerly Miss Ethel Bronson and was a graduate of Hosmer Hall, a fashionable St. Louis school for girls. She and her mother during their recent stay in St. Louis had visited her brother, John Stanard Bronson of 4567A McKinley avenue, and the Stanard family, on Lindell boulevard.

News of the accident was quickly carried to the village of Glen Park, and telephone messages were sent to Sulphur Springs, Kimmswick and De Soto. Telegrams and telephone messages were sent to St. Louis friends of the rescued persons and one of the first messages was sent to Capt. John E. Massengale, local agent of the Tennessee River line, notifying him of the drowning of Mrs. Rhea and Miss Ann Rhea.

The river man was overcome by the news and shrank from the task of notifying Capt. Rhea, the head of the company, of the tragedy. This was done in messages sent from De Soto to Capt. Rhea in Nashville.

William J. Pickett, one of those lost, was a salesman for the Simmons Hardware Co. He was 25 years old, and lived at the home of his father, W. H. Pickett, 3809 Windsor place. He was on his way to Kentucky, and had taken the boat instead of the train in order to have an outing.

Rodes Are All Safe.

Tyree Rodes and his wife and daughter, who at first were reported as missing, had been visiting the family of H. W. Hunt, at 2214 North Taylor avenue. Their safety was later reported to their St. Louis friends.

Mrs. Joseph Harris was the wife of a Nashville physician, and was on her way to her home in that city, as were Miss Lena Wall and Mrs. Rhea and her daughter.

The work of learning just who was lost and who was saved was made more difficult by the loss of the boat's passenger list. This also made it possible that more than the number now known are lost.

At daybreak a gasoline launch, summoned from Sulphur Springs and commanded by Capt. Crane, was manned by rescued members of the boat crew, who began dragging the river in the vicinity of the foundered ship for the bodies of the missing.

Might Have Been Saved.

Owing to the fact that there were no rowboats or launches available at Glen Park, it is probable that many lives were sacrificed which might have been saved. The helpless delay in attempting the work of rescue until boats could be obtained permitted the swift current to sweep many of the bodies downstream, Capt. Crane feared. Others were thought to be entangled in the wreckage or pent within the staterooms.

The only body recovered at dawn was that of Mrs. Isaac T. Rhea, wife of the president of the St. Louis & Tennessee Packet Co. It was washed ashore an hour after the City of Saltillo struck and lay all night on the bank upon a shutter and covered with canvas.

Coroner Hensley of Pevely, Mo., began an inquest into Mrs. Rhea's death Thursday, but continued it until Friday. His investigation is expected to determine why the pilots lost control of the boat, and to place the responsibility for the accident.

Capt. Crane said Thursday morning that the City of Saltillo is a complete loss. She is lying along the stone embankment of the Iron Mountain Railroad, which runs along the river bank. One side of the vessel is high and dry against the embankment, while the other is tilted and submerged in 20 feet away by the sharp rocks, Capt. Crane believes.

Those of the passengers and crew who happened to be on the side of the boat next the shore were able to spring to the embankment and save themselves. But others near the center of the deck or along the opposite bulwark were flung from their feet and rolled into the water as the deck suddenly sank from beneath them and a flood of water poured overboard.

The Iron Mountain embankment is constructed of stones, quarried in the vicinity of Glen Park. The high stage of the river brought the surface of the water near the top of the embankment.

According to telephonic information from the scene of the tragedy, the big steamer, torn by the current from the control of her pilots, drifted shoreward with increasing speed, despite the struggles of the whesimen and the reversing of the engines, turned on her axis so that the prow was pointed northward and smashed broadside into the embankment.

Only Eye-Witness to Wreck Saves Women Hurled Overboard

JOHN KELSEY, 60 years old, an Iron Mountain watchman, was the only person who saw the sinking of the boat from the shore. He was standing beside the track when he saw the boat coming downstream and noticed that it was closer to the shore than it should have been. He knew there was a strong eddy there and realized that the craft was in peril.

"The prow swung around toward the shore," he said. "The crew were making an attempt to lower the gang plank. It struck a tree. The pilot signaled to reverse the engines and tried to pull out, but the eddy swung the boat around again. I saw a woman trying to climb up the gang plank. As the boat swung around she and several others fell off into the water. I saw the woman struggling in the water and heard her shriek two or three times.

"I ran to the water and jumped into a boat and pulled out in the stream. I picked up two men and three women and brought them to shore."

Louisans. A fleet of three boats was formerly in this service, but the sinking and burning of the City of Chester a few years ago, and the transfer of another boat to the upper river service left only the City of Saltillo in commission. Its midsummer excursions were always crowded. Whether this excursion service will be offered the coming summer may depend on the success of the efforts to raise the Saltillo.

Captain Declares That Everything Possible Was Done to Save Lives

Capt. Harry Crane's story of the wreck, as told to a Post-Dispatch reporter, follows:

"The smoke from the lime kiln was the direct cause of the wreck. Through it the pilot was unable to see where the boat was going at a place where the channel is dangerous in high water, because of the rocks.

"When we hit the rocks, the pilot at once tried to swing around and make a landing. We saw that the boat would sink in a few minutes and did our utmost to get everybody out and impress them with the necessity for haste.

"There was no panic and the passengers and crew both acted very calmly. We all believed our lives were safe.

"The crew did not crowd out on the stage at the expense of the passengers. Those who were on the plank and who lost their lives in that way, were there to help the passengers. No blame can attach to any of the crew, either those who were drowned or those who survived. Everything was done that could be done.

"All the loss of life was due to the tipping over of the stage when it struck a tree.

"After this, the roustabouts who got to land picked up some long planks from the lime kiln and on these and in the boats the rest of the people got to land."

BARR CO. GIVES $1000 TO THE Y. W. C. A. FUND

Also Purchases Year's Subscription for Each of Its 1800 Women Employes.

The $400,000 building fund of the Y. W. C. A. was still further augmented Thursday afternoon by the receipt of a check for $1000 from the William Barr Dry Goods Co.

In addition, George H. Allen sent $500 from Barr's office and it was announced that the company had purchased a year's membership, at $1 each, for the 1800 girls in its employ.

This makes a total of $3300 from this source alone.

Mayor Kreismann's team, known as the "millionaires' club" in the Y. W. C. A. pennant race, sprang into fifth place Wednesday by contributing $675. Its total tallies now amount to $970, out of the $328,037.46 which has been collected.

The Ways and Means Committee scored $4000, the Women's Committee $799.50, the Business Women's teams $2361, the Young Women's team $1836 and the Young Men's $180.

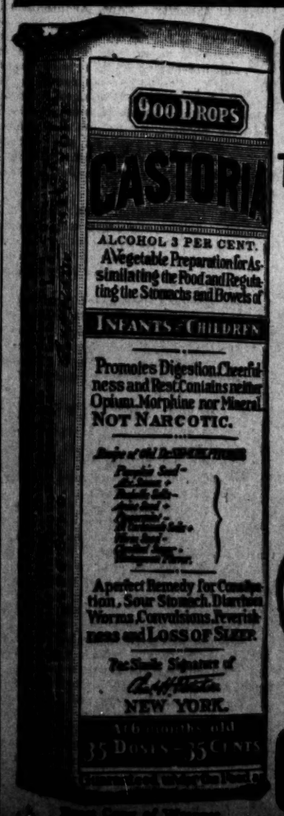

Miss Edith M. Wells, student secretary of the Y. W. C. A., who leaves for Pekin, China, sent her check for $50 from New York.

A dozen newsboys entered the Missouri Trust Building headquarters bashfully and contributed a handful of pennies each. A shabbily-dressed man walked in, placed $1 on a table and walked out, before his name could be learned. Two servants of one of the rich woman collectors sent $5 each.

WOMEN'S LIVES LOST BY CHIVALRY OF BOAT'S CREW

At the inquest which began at Glen Park at 10 a. m. Thursday into the death of Mrs. Isaac T. Rhea, it was testified that the fact that five women and a child were lost was due to the chivalry of the men in obeying Capt. Crane's order of "Women and children first."

While the men stood back, the women were first to attempt to cross the gangplank after it touched the ground. At that moment the surging waters flung the boat away from the shore and the jerking of the gangplank snapped those who were upon it into the water.

The witnesses heard were C. F. Wall of Nashville, whose sister, Miss Lena Wall, was drowned, and Tyree Rodes and his wife, Mrs. Mary Rodes of Nashville. All paid tribute to the heroism of S. C. Baker, clerk of the Saltillo, who was swept overboard and drowned and declared that the courage of the officers of the boat prevented a greater loss of life.

"Our party was sitting on the lower deck, chatting, after a card game," said Mrs. Rodes, "when suddenly there was an awful crash. The boat seemed to be crumbling under our feet. Mr. Baker ran up to us and told us to be calm. He led us to the front end of the boat, near the gangplank.

"Capt. Crane shouted: 'Women and children first,' as the plank swung out over the water and grasped the shore. Several women rushed out upon the plank, but before they reached the bank, the boat was thrown by the waves away from the shore, and the plank jerked wildly up and down. Everyone upon it was thrown into the water and drowned."

Mrs. Rodes' statement was corroborated by her husband. Wall said he was playing cards when the boat struck, and Capt. Crane, running in, told him and his companions to be ready for anything. Wall assisted Miss Wall upon the gangplank, from which she was flung a moment later.

After hearing this testimony, the Coroner, Dr. Oliver Hensley, postponed the hearing until 10 a. m. Friday in order to summon other witnesses. The jurymen were Walter Busch, Albert Wessler, Richard Weber, Henry Heiner, William Parish and Albert Cross.

Patrolman Is Suspended for Derogatory Remarks in Saloon About Owen Miller.

Probationary Policeman E. Richmond Dill was pickled by Capt. Johnson of the North Market Street Station Thursday for entering a saloon and making remarks derogatory to Owen Miller, head of the Musicians' Union. Dill is the organizer of the policemen's band and was a musician before he began walking a beat.

The police band was conceived by Dill and Capt. Pickal, formerly in command of the North Market Street District.

Dill's derogatory remarks concerning Owen Miller are said to have been made to a man named Colley in a saloon on Sixth street, between Olive and Pine streets. He has been suspended.

MOTHER SEES CHILD PERISH IN RUSHING CURRENT; WOMEN ARE SAVED BY HEROIC MEN

and Mr. McIntosh pulled me toward the side of the boat that was nearest the Missouri shore. It seemed to be right up against the shore, in fact, not more than a rowboat's length away.

"I fell over a chair, but I caught a door and clung to it, and the steward lowered the lifeboat.

"I slid down a rope and got into the boat, and some men, I don't know who they were, got us to the bank. We climbed up a steep cliff and came to the little house where a Mrs. Yeager lived. She was awfully good to us—built a big fire and dried our clothes and let us stay at her house."

Miss Sheehan was in such imminent danger herself that she had no opportunity to see how others fared, and when she reached a place of safety she had no idea whether anyone had been drowned.

Miss Sheehan had been employed by the boat company as pianist and was making her first trip in preparation for the summer excursion season, which was to open as soon as the weather would permit. She was formerly employed at the Grand-Leader store, and was a member of the dramatic company made up of employes of that store. Her home is at 4553 Natural Bridge road. Her father, Patrolman Sheehan, is stationed at the City Dispensary.

Darkness Prevents Rescues.

Heroic attempts at rescue, made by some of the crew and passengers, were in most cases unsuccessful because of the darkness, the electric lights having been put out when the engine room was flooded.

William R. Barnhart Jr. of 5038 Washington boulevard accompanied his mother and two sisters, Mary and Fannie, 8 and 10 years old, and saved them and the family nurse, who was with them, after all had been almost drowned on the flooded cabin deck.

He went back and rescued others and as the risk became too great to permit him to return to the boat, he stood on the bank and wept at the fate of those who had been swept away.

Pat Doyle, a one-armed watchman, is credited with saving Miss Louisa Rhea. The two were thrown into the water together, where they could hold to the boat's side, and Doyle told the girl to cling to his legs while he held, with his one hand, to the side. A. Rittenhaus, the second clerk, dragged them to the deck and they went over the gang plank.

Mother Sees Baby Perish.

Mrs. Edward F. Bronson of Chester, Ill., who saved her 11-months-old granddaughter, Dorothy, witnessed the drowning of her daughter, Mrs. Archibald M. Patterson, and of her 2-year-old son, Archie.

"My daughter and I, with the two children, had retired to our cabin, when the boat crashed into the embankment," Mrs. Bronson said Thursday. "There came the grating of the hull along the rocks, the smashing of timbers and screams from the deck. The floor tilted beneath us, and we could scarcely keep our footing. My daughter, carrying her son, rushed upstairs to the gangplank and I followed with the baby. The crowd surged between us and I could not keep up.

"I saw Mrs. Patterson step upon the plank, holding the boy in her arms. An instant later the plank seemed to fall from under her, she fell headlong into the water and was swept downstream, disappearing in the darkness.

Passengers Rolled About.

"I climbed to the upper deck and clung to the rail until some man came by with a boat and took the baby from my arms. I was too weak to climb down to the boat, and they lowered me with a rope."

Mrs. William Hawke of Nashville, Tenn., was in the cabin when she heard the sound of breaking glass and she stepped out on the deck.

She heard Clerk Baker say: "Don't get excited; we have only struck a sandbar." A moment later she heard the captain shout: "Get to shore as fast as you can!"

"The boat seemed to tilt," she says, "and the lights went out. I fell to the deck. As I scrambled to my feet a rope was thrown. Somebody tied it to something and I went down it hand over hand to a boat and was taken to shore. There were several others in the skiff with me. I do not know who they were."

May Barnhart, 5-year-old daughter of Mrs. W. H. Barnhart, was the first person to reach the boarding house of Mrs. George Yeide, a short distance from the shore. Mrs. Yeide, who did not know anything had happened, opened her door in response to a timid knock and saw the child standing there. Several others, following closely, came to the door at almost the same instant.

Very soon afterward Mrs. Barnhart and her daughter, Fannie, 9 years old, and her son, Carter, 15 years old, arrived. Mrs. Barnhart did not know that had become of May and was frantic. She was overjoyed to find the child safe. Mrs. Barnhart and Mrs. Yeide are old friends, but Mrs. Barnhart did not know it was the home of Mrs. Yeide to which she was going.

Miss Louise Rhea, who lost mother and sister in the catastrophe and narrowly escaped losing her own life, could not walk unsupported, and was upheld by the arms of Miss Sarah L. Rodes of Nashville and Mrs. C. E. Means of 3640 Washington boulevard, St. Louis, when she arrived at Union Station. With Miss Frances Harris of Nashville, who lost her mother, the four women were placed in a taxicab by Harry W. Hunt, a cousin of Miss Rodes, and sent to the home of Mrs. Means.

Miss Rodes was the only one of the party capable of speech after the night of horror, and she said that all the efforts of her will could not enable her to remember with clearness the events of the few minutes during which the steamer foundered.

Tell of Her Rescue.

"All I can remember," she said, "is that we all went into the water in the darkness. I suppose I seized a plank, but I don't know. I have no idea how I got ashore. Everything is a blank."

Miss Rhea was weeping for her mother and sister, and the tender ministrations of her friends could not comfort her. But for their hands she would have fallen to the ground, outworn with sorrow.

Miss Rodes told Post-Dispatch reporter the story of her experience on the sinking boat:

"I was sitting in the cabin deck playing cards with Clerk S. Calvin Baker, the Misses Ann and Louise Rhea and Miss Frances Harris, when I heard the crash," she said. "Mr. Baker sprang to his feet and tried to assure everybody that no harm would come to them.

"'Let's sit down and finish the game,' he said to us.

"Just at that moment the captain came in. He said the boat was sinking slowly, but as it was near shore everybody would be taken off in safety. He asked the people not to be alarmed, but his words frightened everybody and pandemonium broke loose.

"Baker again shouted for everybody to be calm and then went to the safe in his office and took out the money. He said he would take us all ashore safely. With Mrs. Rhea, Miss Ann Rhea and Mrs. Harris he started to get off of the boat on a gang plank.

"He was leading the way and the women were following. Suddenly the boat lurched and Baker and the three women were thrown into the water and swept away. We never say any of them again.

"I followed my father and mother to the hurricane deck. Father was trying to get us on shore by means of a long pole. Another man who was trying to get his family off kept fighting for possession of the pole.

"The result was that nobody could use it. When we were delayed there the boat gave another lurch and a pile of freight boxes tumbled down upon us. Mother's skirt was caught under one of the boxes and pinioned so tightly that she had to slip it off and leave it.

"A rowboat was finally run up alongside of the sinking boat and we stepped in that and walked across to a sandbar, from which we were rescued."

...IT SLUGS HARD

Coffee a Sure and Powerful Bruiser.

"Let your coffee slave be denied his cup at its appointed time! Headache—sick stomach—fatigue like unto death. I know it all in myself, and have seen it in others. Strange that thinking, reasoning beings will persist in its use," says a Topeka, Kansas, man.

He says further that he did not begin drinking coffee until after he was twenty years old, and that slowly it began to poison him, and affect his hearing through his nervous system.

"Finally, I quit coffee and the conditions slowly disappeared, but one cold morning the smell of my wife's coffee was too much for me and I took a cup. Soon I was drinking my regular allowance, tearing down brain and nerves by the daily dose of the nefarious concoction.

"Later, I found my breath coming hard and frequent fits of nausea, and then I was taken down with bilious fever.

"Common sense came to me and I quit coffee for good and went back to Postum. I at once began to gain and have had no returns of my bilious symptoms, headache, dizziness, or vertigo.

"I now have health, bright thoughts, and added weight where before there was invalidism, the blues, and a skeleton-like condition of the body.

"My brother quit coffee because of its effect on his health and now uses Postum. He could not stand the nervous strain while using coffee, but keeps well on Postum.

"Miss F., I know personally, was incapable of doing a day's work while she was using coffee. She quit it and took up Postum and is now well and has perfectly steady nerves."

136 MEN BURIED BY AN EXPLOSION IN ENGLISH MINE

MANCHESTER, England, May 12.—An explosion in the Wellington Coal Mine at White Haven last night cut off the exit from the 136 miners who were working below the surface.

Rescue parties succeeded today in saving four men, but were prevented by gas from reaching the point where most of the men are imprisoned.

Up to 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, no further rescues had been accomplished.

Every indication was that the inner workings of the mine were on fire and there was the gravest apprehension regarding the entombed men. Distracted crowds of relatives surrounded the pit head and the scene was distressing.

The colliery is owned by the Earl of Lonsdale and its workings extend for four or five miles beneath the sea.

The spot where the 85 hewers and five shiftmen, still imprisoned, were working at the time of the explosion, is about three miles from the shaft exit. The rescuers directed their efforts to tunneling a road through the accumulations blocking the passageway and by mid-afternoon had reached a point within a mile of their goal. Their progress, however, was slow, as dangerous fumes filled the workings.

Hyde's Attorney Pleads for Client's Acquittal

sick members of the family with skillful ministrations.

"Could she dream," Walsh asked, "that the wheel of fate would revolve until it threw her into this crowded courtroom, under the curious gaze of a thousand persons, her condition apparent to them all and to you 12 men, whom she never saw before?

"Could she dream that she would hear a lawyer employed by her own mother ask Dr. Hyde, 'Was anybody present when Col. Swope died except your wife?'

Present When Col. Swope Died.

"You heard that insinuation. Well, I say to you that she was present. She saw the old man breathe his last, and ministered to him as tenderly as she could. This poor girl was an angel of mercy and sweetness then as always, and she was present when Col. Swope died. Let them make as much of it as they will. Let them insinuate that she was her husband's aid and accomplice. Look at her, gentlemen, and decide for yourselves whether it is true."

Walsh took up the minute details of the evidence.

"And I beg your earnest attention," he told the jury, "because these details point the way between life and death, between honor and disgrace. It is through them that you may decide whether this man shall be strangled like a dog."

The prosecution had pointed out that if bleeding was the proper treatment for Moss Hunton, Dr. Hyde should have bled Col. Swope. Walsh replied that the cases were dissimilar, because Hunton was a stout and full-blooded man, while Col. Swope was emaciated and thin-blooded, requiring different treatment.

The time had come when Col. Swope must die of senility, Walsh declared. The millionaire forecast his death to S. W. Spangler, his business manager, and when he recovered consciousness a moment during his last convulsion it was natural, Walsh said, that he should exclaim, as he did, "My God! I wish I were dead!"

Walsh defended Dr. Hyde's treatment of Col. Swope, in giving repeated injections of strychnine hypodermically. This showed, Walsh declared, that Hyde wanted to keep the millionaire alive, not to kill him.

When Dr. Hyde testified that Col. Swope seemed to him to be dying of apoplexy, and that this still seemed to him the cause of the death, he made the reply of a brave and honest man, Walsh declared. If Dr. Hyde had known that Col. Swope had Bright's disease and sclerosis, Walsh said, he would have certified that the death was due to uremia, but he did not know it, and gave as the cause the malady apparent to him from the symptoms.

Col. Swope had been contemplating a change in his will for fully a year before his death, so as to create a great Kansas City charity, Walsh declared. This was the testimony of Spangler, a defense witness. It was as absurd, the lawyer declared, to charge that revenge prompted murder, on account of Col. Swope's opposition to the marriage; because Col. Swope had overcome his prejudice and had shown Dr. Hyde every mark of respect and affection.

Only Mrs. Swope had testified that Hyde knew of the residuary part of the estate, Walsh pointed out. He told of her prejudice against Dr. Hyde, and added:

"If you disregard her word on that point you leave absolutely no motive to account for this alleged crime.

"If you kill this man, you do it on the unsupported recollection of that one woman."

He pointed at Mrs. Swope, when he said this, and her face was white.

Nurse Kellar was mistaken when she said Dr. Hyde tried to get her to use her influence to have him made executor. There was such a conversation, Walsh said, but it was between Dr. and Mrs. Hyde, not the doctor and the nurse; and the suggestion came from Mrs. Hyde, not from him.

When Walsh began speaking there remained 18 hours of arguments, and the case probably will go to the jury Friday night or early Saturday. Each side has a maximum of 10 hours. For the State there are four speakers, and for the defense three. They will alternate, the State opening and closing.

Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Jost made the first speech for the State, after Judge Latshaw had instructed the jury late yesterday afternoon that the verdict must be murder in the first degree or acquittal. He reviewed the testimony and brought out strongly the coincidences of Dr. Hyde's purchases of cyanide of potassium and the convulsions from which Col. Swope and Chrisman Swope died. Mrs. Logan O. Swope, who financed the prosecution of the case, often was in tears during his argument. Dr. Hyde's cold blue eyes searched the faces of the jurors constantly and Mrs. Hyde, during that part of the speech in which discredit was cast on her testimony, wept softly.

Division of Estate Explained.

After a brief preliminary, Jost launched into an explanation of Mrs. Hyde's financial profit by the deaths of Col. Swope and Chrisman Swope. He told how Col. Swope had a plan to bequeath $1,500,000, not disposed of in his will, to some Kansas City charity, and how his death prevented fulfillment of the plan, so that the residue was divided among the heirs, of whom Mrs. Hyde was one.

Her bequest under the original will was $135,000 and her share of the residue was $140,000 more. Chrisman's share of the estate was $410,000, and on his death this was divided among the other heirs, Mrs. Hyde receiving about $75,000. If Margaret had died during the convulsion she had, Mrs. Hyde would have received $75,000 more.

"The death of Col. Swope at that time robbed the poor of Kansas City and enriched the heirs $1,500,000," said Jost. "Mrs. Hyde's profit from her husband's crime was $275,000, and from the death of Chrisman she profited $75,000 more. The only reason this fellow laid his murderous hand on Margaret Swope was because by her death"——

Walsh objected to the term "murderous hand," and was sustained. Jost was cautioned against the use of such terms.

"It was through the desire to enrich himself that this physician, in moderate circumstances, sought to accomplish the destruction of the Swope family, Jost declared. "He was living in a $10,000 home Col. Swope had given him, and that was about all he had. The reason for the death of Col. Swope was that Dr. Hyde wanted to gain possession at once of the handsome fortune to which his wife was heir.

"The testimony here has shown that as soon as Dr. Hyde learned that Col. Swope was planning to change his will, he arranged to begin treating the old man, and the next day engaged a trained nurse. He would much have preferred some one else to honest Nurse Kellar—he has said himself that he tried to get another woman and couldn't. But she was there, and you have heard what she had to say about what happened in the Swope home.

"Under the care of this nurse, Col. Swope improved, and took daily drives. His spirits rose. Then Dr. Hyde planned to give him medicine. He suggested Hollenden tablets, a digestive preparation. Col. Swope consented to take it, and the very next day we find Dr. Hyde at Hugo Brecklein's drug store, buying cyanide of potassium, a poison not used in medicine. And the very next day after that, Col. Swope died in convulsions.

Convulsions Follow Capsule.

"The testimony shows that Dr. Hyde told Nurse Kellar at the breakfast table to give Col. Swope the capsule, and handed it to her. She gave it, and the convulsion came on 20 minutes later. Experts examined Col. Swope's viscera, and they discovered, gentlemen, that the cyanide Dr. Hyde bought had found its way into Col. Swope's stomach."

Jost argued that if bleeding was the proper treatment for Moss Hunton in an apoplectic attack, it should have been the proper treatment for Col. Swope. Instead, Dr. Hyde gave him a hypodermic to stimulate the heart action and blood pressure.

"Dr. and Mrs. Hyde have contradicted practically every witness who took the stand for the State in this case," Jost observed. "I beg you to remember that this man is standing in the very shadow of the gallows, or that, if he is not, his face is pressed against the bars of the prison. He can be expected to say whatever will save his neck. If it be true that he gave poison to a helpless old man, caused a typhoid epidemic in which eight persons were stricken down, and threw Margaret Swope into convulsions, then it is not to be expected that he would confine himself to the facts in his testimony here.

"As to Mrs. Hyde, God forbid that I should say anything to cause her pain. I cannot deny her privilege to testify to whatever she wishes in her husband's behalf. I only wish to call attention to the conflict between her statements and the statements of disinterested witnesses. She says that Mrs. Swope was not at the breakfast table the morning of Col. Swope's convulsion, and could not have known whether Dr. Hyde told the nurse to give the Colonel a capsule. When Mrs. Hyde says that, she practically accuses her mother of lying. For her mother has just told you that both she and Margaret arose at 5 a. m. that morning and ate breakfast with the others.

MORFIT HOSPITAL COMMISSIONER AT $5000 A YEAR

Dr. John C. Morfit, appointed Hospital Commissioner at a salary of $5000 a year, will assume charge of the hospitals, dispensaries and other city institutions this week. At the request of the Hospital Board by which he was selected, he will begin the reorganization of the institutions as soon as possible.

When his name was presented to the board for consideration at its meeting Wednesday, Dr. Morfit's appointment was strongly opposed by Dr. J. B. Shapleigh, one of the members.

Dr. Shapleigh and Ben F. Gray, vice-chiarman of the board, favored the selection of Dr. H. S. Atkins, superintendent of the Insane Asylum. Dr. Atkins has been acting Hospital Commissioner.

Following the reading of various commendatory letters written to members of the Board by friends of Dr. Morfit, Dr. Shapleigh declared that he could not bring himself to support the nominee.

"It has been said that Dr. Morfit is an organizer. Personally I know that he is a disorganizer. He is credited with having great tact. Of my own knowledge I can say that he has shown egregious lack of tact," Dr. Shapleigh declared.

Mayor Kreismann said he regretted "the unwisdom and impropriety" of Dr. Morfit's selection, because of the "suspicion that he had a selfish interest in obtaining the passage of the bill reorganizing the hospitals and creating the position of Hospital Commissioner." The Mayor, however, cast his vote for Dr. Morfit. Four other commissioners joined the Mayor in electing Dr. Morfit.

Time is up May 31st. Must sell remainder of our $25.00 stock. Prices more than cut in half.

BURGLAR STEALS MONEY AND CUTS OFF WOMAN'S HAIR

Marauder, Surprised at His Work, Resists Effort Made to Capture Him.

VICTIM IS THREATENED

Police Are Told of the Thief's Visit Three Hours After He Escaped.

Mrs. Grace Evans, 2645 Lafayette avenue, says a burglar she discovered in her apartments at 3 o'clock Thursday morning threw a red liquid in her face, cut off her braided hair, took a money belt containing $75 from around her waist and escaped.

Mrs. Evans called Sergt. Hussey and Patrolman Jones to her home at 6 o'clock Thursday morning. She told them she was awakened at 3 o'clock by footsteps in the adjoining room, occupied by her 12-year-old granddaughter. She went to the door and saw a man leaning over an open drawer of the dresser in the room. She attacked him and he threw a reddish liquid into her face. None of it entered her eyes. He then seized her and cut off 20 inches of her hair, hanging in a braid down her back.

Around her waist over her night clothing she wore a belt containing a $50 bill and $25 in smaller bills. He wrenched this off and picking up a bag in which he had deposited jewelry and clothing, ran down the back steps. The back door was locked. He went back up steps and ran down the front steps and out through the front door.

Mrs. Evans says the man threatened to kill her if she made an outcry, and it was half an hour before she awakened her sons, Bert, aged 30, and Hezekiah, aged 19, and told them what had happened.

Her clothing was stained with the liquid that had been thrown on it. The braid of her hair was gone, and the money belt and contents were gone.

The bag of jewelry and clothing was found at the foot of the back steps, where the burglar had dropped it when he found that he could not get out that way.

Mrs. Evans is 55 years old. She says the man was tall and muscular and wore a slouch hat. Her husband is employed as a night watchman.

BAKER MAKES A FINAL PLEA FOR A FULL CENSUS

APPEAL MADE TO ALL WHO ARE NOT ON CENSUS ROLL

HAVE YOU BEEN ENUMERATED?

If not, or if you have any doubt, telephone to, or fill out this coupon and mail to

HENRY A. BAKER,
823 Merchants-Laclede Bldg.
Bell, Main 965. Kinloch, Cent. 2315.
Name .....
Address .....

Henry A. Baker, supervisor of the census of St. Louis, is eager that a full and complete count of the population of the city should be made. Believing it probable that hundreds of persons have been overlooked, or that his enumerators have been unable to locate many, and that probably hundreds of citizens have escaped enumeration by reason of moving from one place to another while the count was in progress, he seeks to urge upon all citizens the patriotic duty of assisting him in finishing up the work in hand, so that St. Louis may make the best showing possible when the census of 1910 shall be announced.

This duty can be done, according to his idea, by filling out the accompanying blank under the conditions named on the face of it.

DOCTOR WANTS PRE-NUPTIAL DEED OF PROPERTY CANCELLED

Declares Wife Got Estate and Immediately Transferred It to Son.

Dr. Schofield M. Parker, a wealthy physician at Kirkwood, filed suit at Clayton Wednesday afternoon asking the cancellation of a pre-nuptial deed by which he conveyed four pieces of real estate to his wife, Mrs. Jennie L. Miller-Parker. Her mother, Mrs. Stella Van Dusen, and her son by a previous marriage, Claire H. Miller, are named as co-defendants in the suit.

Dr. Parker asserts that he met Mrs. Parker, who was then Mrs. Miller, a widow, in July, 1909, and that she consented to marry him on condition that he placed his property in Kirkwood and Avondale in her name. On Oct. 23, which was set for the wedding, he says he executed a deed of conveyance, on condition that it should not be filed with the County Recorder until after the marriage ceremony.

But the bride-to-be, he says, without waiting for the tie that binds, had the deed recorded, and immediately transferred the property to her mother.

Dr. Parker called the wedding off, he says, and filed suit to have his deed declared void. Thereupon, he alleges, Mrs. Miller informed him she was ready to marry him if he would let the deed stand. He consented, and the marriage took place Oct. 23.

In March of this year, he continues, Mrs. Parker left him and went to Canada, after transferring her title to the property to her son.

CORPORATION TAX INCOME WILL REPRESENT $1 FOR EVERY CITIZEN IN THE U. S.

Dollars Collected Thus Far About Equal to Population in Districts Represented.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—A dollar for every citizen of the United States with few exceptions, is the way the corporation tax now being levied in accordance with the Aldrich-Payne tariff law is working, according to returns received from tax agents by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

The tax receipts from St. Louis will be $680,431.11.

In Greater New York the tax is a trifle less than a dollar a head if the census of 1905 is used as a basis, but it is believed by those who have in charge the collecting of the tax that in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, San Francisco, St. Louis, Buffalo, Baltimore, Cincinnati and New Orleans the tax will be about a dollar a head when the 1910 census is completed and the full returns from corporations have been received.

In Greater New York in 1905 the population was 4,014,304, the assessment under the corporation tax and penalties, so far received, amount to $4,217,642.18. The total tax for New York State will amount to about 75 cents a person.

Chicago has a population of more than 2,000,000. The assessment on the net income of her corporations amount to $2,297,078.52, or a little less than a dollar a head. The population of 1910 will show the tax to be about $1 a person.

In Philadelphia the tax amounts to $1,417,174, and the population is 1,293,697.

The population of Cincinnati is 325,902, while the tax amounts to $392,264.34.

FAIRBANKS IS THOUGHT TO BE SLATED FOR AMBASSADORSHIP

Report From Indiana That He Will Go to St. James Court Is Generally Believed.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—No confirmation can be had of the report that former Vice-President Fairbanks is to succeed Whitelaw Reid as Ambassador to the Court of St. James.

The report, which came from Indianapolis, is generally believed to be founded on fact.

The Indiana man refused to confirm or deny the report that the place had been offered to him, according to dispatches from his home.

MAKING READY AT BEVERLEY

Mrs. Taft Will Arive First at President's Home.

BEVERLEY, Mass., May 12.—The Burgess Point summer villa of President Taft is being made ready for occupancy. Orders were received yesterday to have the place in readiness for Mrs. Taft's arrival at a minute's notice. Painters and decorators have been engaged about the estate for some time. Yesterday the lights were installed. The house will probably be ready in a couple of days.

Mrs. Taft is expected to arrive first. The children will probably come here immediately after the close of school. Many members of the summer colony have arrived fully three weeks earlier this season than usual.

CENTRAL FALLS, R. I., May 12.—Five hundred employes of the United States Cotton Mills here were thrown out of work by a strike of 130 weavers for an increase of 10 per cent in wages. The entire plant was closed down.

TAFT IN TRIBUTE AT UNVEILING OF SHAFTS TO POLES

President Contributes to Ceremonies at Statues of Kosciusko and Pulaski.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—President Taft paid a tribute to the foreign soldiers who helped the United States win independence when he attended the unveiling of the statues of Pulaski and Kosciusko, the former at Thirteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue and the latter in Lafayette square.

Taft delivered the eulogy at the Pulaski statue, while Secretary of War Dickinson was the principal speaker at the Kosciusko ceremonies. The President said:

"It is idle to speculate what might have been the success of American arms in the War of the Revolution had we not been assisted by subjects of foreign countries. It is sufficient for us to note that those who assisted us in that struggle for independence and liberty contributed materially to our success.

"Hence to Lafayette, to Rochambeau, to Von Steuben, to De Kalb, to Pulaski, to Kosciusko and to others, it is fitting that there should be erected monuments like this to have it understood that America is grateful and holds in sweet memory those who came to her in her hour of danger and of trouble.

"When Count Casimir Pulaski came here the American army practically had no cavalry," said the President, "and to him, with the permission of Washington and with the vote of the Congress, was turned over the question of the organization of a cavalry force.

"Subsequently organizing an independent legion known as 'Pulaski's Legion' he fought his way from north to south, until finally, after taking part in the campaign about Charleston, he lost his life in a brilliant charge at Savannah and was suitably buried in the bosom of the ocean from a frigate of the United States.

"Could he have looked forward to the coming to this country of 3,000,000 of his Polish fellow citizens; could he have seen them take their honorable part in the American electorate; could he have seen the welcome they have received; the prosperity they have aided; the strength that they have given to this country, and the happiness that they have found under the starry banner that he labored to make triumphant, he would, indeed, have felt that his labors were not in vain."

BURKE TAKES UP ST. LOUIS END OF BRIBERY CHARGES

Illinois State's Attorney Holds a Consultation With Circuit Attorney Jones.

State's Attorney Burke of Springfield, Ill., arrived in St. Louis Thursday to confer with Circuit Attorney Jones relative to the alleged bribery of members of the Illinois Legislature in connection with Senator Lorimer's election.

Judge Shirley of Springfield refused Wednesday to issue an injunction against Burke restraining him from investigating the alleged bribery.

"They are trying to keep us from investigating matters that occurred at our very doors in Springfield," Burke said, as he entered Jones' office."

The purpose of his visit here is to investigate the St. Louis end of the bribery story. It is said that the money was paid to certain members of the Illinois Legislature in a room of the Southern Hotel.

That constitutes an offense under the Missouri laws, as well as under the Illinois laws, and it is thought that an investigation may be made here.

State's Attorney Burke is said to wish to make arrangements with Circuit Attorney Jones whereby he can offer a broader guarantee of immunity to witnesses who turn state's evidence.

Circuit Attorney Jones has stated that if he could get the witnesses here he would make an investigation. He has no power to compel the attendance of witnesses from Illinois.

After the conference with Circuit Attorney Jones, Burke said to a Post-Dispatch reporter:

"The corrupt bribery agreement was made in Springfield, and the cases ought to be tried there, instead of in Chicago. I am not expecting much conflict with the Chicago people, however, as I think in time the State's Attorney and Attorney-General will see that our court has the only jurisdiction in the cases."

Burke said that Circuit Attorney Jones had supplied him with the register of the Southern Hotel containing the names of members of the Illinois Legislature who were registered there at the time the money is said to have passed hands in the bathroom.

Odd Bits of News From the Leaves of Nature's Scrapbook

Chinese Envoy's Daughters Enjoy Making "Yankee Fudge."

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The Misses Chang, daughters of the new Chinese Minister, are the latest converts to "fudge." The perfume of the joss sticks, so delightful to Oriental nostrils, which daily floats from the handsome residence occupied by the Chinese envoy and his family, is now mingled with a seductive odor easily identified by an American school girl. It is "fudge." Last week the Chinese maidens broke their record by carrying on the fudge-making process three times in one day.

The girls have a governess who visits them daily to instruct them in the English branches. In common with most Chinese they are diligent students and have made astonishingly rapid progress in their studies. As soon, however, as the governess gives the order to break ranks the girls file to the kitchen where the fudging is speedily under way.

Terrier Lives 13 Days Without Any Food or Water.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., May 12.—After spending 13 days without food or water in the bottom of an old well, a Scotch terrier belonging to Mrs. W. Butler Duncan, which disappeared more than two weeks ago, has been restored to its owner. With careful nursing and feeding the dog has recovered rapidly.

A boy passing the well was attracted by means coming from the depths of the old shaft. He looked down and at the bottom saw the terrier. The boy called for help and neighbors came and got the dog out.

Mrs. Duncan was overjoyed when she found the dog had been recovered. The day after it disappeared she offered a reward of $50 for its recovery, and when it was not found she came to the conclusion it had been stolen.

In falling into the well the dog escaped injury. This morning he is apparently as well as ever.

Son Beats Man at the Request of His Mother.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 12.—Acting on instructions from his mother, Etheridge Colton, son of George R. Colton, Governor of Porto Rico, attacked T. E. Vogt of Long Beach last night and gave him a severe beating.

Vogt's wife and Mrs. Cotton spent yesterday evening together, and when they arrived at the Vogt residence, Vogt objected strenuously to being disturbed by their conversation. An argument followed with Mrs. Colton, who uses a crutch to walk, and in the progress of the row Vogt, it is alleged, pushed Mrs. Colton from her feet. In a rage the woman called upon her son to "clean up the floor" with Vogt. This the young man did, and as a result Vogt swore out a warrant and young Colton was arrested on a charge of assault.

Engaged Before the Civil War Couple Are at Last Married.

STAMFORD, Conn., May 12.—The marriage of Miss Emily Brown, a Stamford school teacher, to Norman Prevost culminates a courtship which began before the Civil War. The two were sweethearts when the war broke out, and Mr. Prevost enlisted in the Union army. They have been engaged ever since, but have postponed their marriage from time to time for various reasons.

Why Not Regard Marriage as a Profession, He Asks.

TROY, N. Y., May 12.—"Why cannot the clever woman look on matrimony as a profession?" asked Prof. I. Woodford Riley of Vassar in an address at the opening session of the Episcopal Church Congress, which is meeting here this week.

"As a profession—or perhaps rather a something demanding professional abilities it is commonly said that a far-seeing girl threatened with spinsterhood marries merely to have a home. That is scarcely true. Cleverness seldom loses its head. The clever woman wishes to marry the clever man and does so.

"Now, from a cold-blooded point of view, such marriages take place from justifiable ambition. Two heads are better than one. And the clever woman sees that she can influence her husband in his professional affairs and thereby affect the interests of their community. Is this unamerican because unsentimental?"

Youngest Stowaway on Record Arrives in Gotham.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The youngest stowaway that ever arrived in New York City is Philip Ingraham, a 7-year-old Jamaica negro boy, who arrived on the steamer Tagus, from Kingston. He was playing tag on the Kingston water front when hunger drove him to the Tagus.

Scouring about the hold of the vessel, he found a few discarded biscuit and after eating them fell fast asleep. He did not wake up until the steamer was 10 hours out from port.

Surprised That Nevada Has a Representative.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Representative Hughes of New Jersey was showing a party of his constituents through the Capitol the other day. He took them to the Speaker's gallery, and the group listened to the debate on the railway bill for a few minutes. Then one of the ladies turned to the Congressman and said:

"Oh, Mr. Hughes, who is the short man in the frock coat who is talking to the Speaker?"

"That is Mr. Bartlett of Nevada," replied Mr. Hughes.

"My word!" was the rejoinder, "they have congressmen from almost everywhere, don't they?"

Circus Elephant Attacks Keeper.

OAKLAND, Cal., May 12.—"Rajah," one of the largest elephants in the world, now with a circus in Berkeley, ran amuck yesterday and, knocking the keeper, Tony Nustano, to the ground with his trunk, trampled him badly before help arrived. The man suffered two fractured ribs and internal injuries. His recovery is doubtful.

Woman Heads School System.

KENOSHA, Wis., May 12.—The Board of Education has elected Mrs. Mary D. Bradford to head the school system. She is now in charge of the teachers' training college of the State Normal School at White Water and is known as a writer of books on educational matters.

SICK AND DESPONDENT

But After Taking Cardui, the Woman's Tonic, Felt Like a New Woman, Says Mrs. Drew.

"About five (5) years ago," says Mrs. L. Drew, of this place, "I was afflicted with pains which caused intense suffering.

"I had headache and backache continually; had bright, blinding spots before my eyes, was weak and despondent, and unable to do housework for a family of three.

"I took two bottles of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and in one month I felt like a new woman, and worked hard all summer.

"Have had no return of the trouble and can do any kind of work at any and all times without the least pain.

"I am now in perfect health and recommend Cardui to all suffering women. I find it harmless and very effective."—McLeansboro, Ill.

Of course, Cardui is harmless and effective.

Time-tested and reliable, it has, in the past 50 years, been steadily forging ahead in popularity, due to its good qualities, that all lady users readily acknowledge.

No medicine can succeed without real merit behind it. Many articles sell well because they look good, but the only possible explanation for the success of a woman's medicine, like Cardui, is that it can be depended upon to get results.

A FACT ABOUT THE "BLUES"

What is known as the "Blues" is seldom occasioned by actual existing external conditions, but in the great majority of cases by a disordered LIVER.

THIS IS A FACT which may be demonstrated by trying a course of

They control and regulate the LIVER. They bring hope and buoyancy to the mind. They bring health and elasticity to the body.

SENATOR BAILEY DRY ADVOCATE

Texan Will Take Stump in Support of Prohibitionist.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Texans here are advised that Senator Bailey will take the stump in their native State in support of the candidacy of William Poindexter for Governor, and thereby in support of the Prohibitionists.

Senator Bailey has heretofore been in the camp of the anti-Prohibitionists, and his sudden change somewhat confuses the political situation.

ROOSEVELT WARNS GERMAN STUDENTS OF RACE SUICIDE

Long Expected Lecture at University of Berlin Delivered Today.

COMPLIMENTS TEUTON

Hunter Declares He Is Lost in Admiration of Their Achievements.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

BERLIN, May 12.—Col. Roosevelt today delivered his long-expected lecture at the University of Berlin, taking for his theme, "The World Movement." The discussion of this far-reaching and somewhat obscure subject proved a brief but thorough history of social, ethical and spiritual movements of the world from the earliest record.

The morals drawn and the conclusions arrived at all were highly complimentary to the sturdy German race. The famous American's well-known views on the duty of rearing a large family again were aired, and again was a warning uttered against the artistic trend to luxury and effeminate ease.

The cultivation of the manly arts was recommended and the virtue of being on "fighting edge" was repeated several times in the lecture. This the former President explained, meant keeping in trim and not permitting oneself to become enervated by the softening influences of an overripe civilization.

Col. Roosevelt received from the university the honorary degree of doctor of philosophy. Emperor William, who entered with the distinguished speaker, heard the address, as did 15 members of the royal family and a large number of diplomats.

The six chiefs of the student corps, in full uniform, and with drawn swords, stood on the platform with the speaker. They stood motionless through the three hours of the lecture.

Lecture Was Long.

The lecture was long. The more important parts of it follow:

"The only previous civilization with which our modern civilization can be in any way compared is that period of Greco-Roman civilization, extending, say, from the Athens of Themistocles to the Rome of Marcus Aurelius. Many of the forces and tendencies which were then at work are at work now. Knowledge, luxury and refinement, wide material conquests, territorial administration on a vast scale, an increase in the mastery of mechanical appliances and in applied science—all these mark our civilization as they marked the wonderful civilization that flourished in the Mediterranean lands 20 centuries ago; and they preceded the downfall of the older civilization.

"One of the prime dangers of civilization always has been its tendency to cause the loss of the virile fighting virtues—of the fighting edge. When men get too comfortable and lead too luxurious lives, there is always danger lest the softness eat like an acid into their manliness of fiber. The barbarian, because of the very conditions of his life, is forced to keep and develop certain hardy qualities which the man of civilization tends to lose, whether he be clerk, factory hand, merchant, or even a certain type of farmer. Now, I will not assert that in modern civilized society, these tendencies have been wholly overcome, but there has been a much more successful effort to overcome them than was the case in the early civilizations.

"What is the lesson to us today? Are we to go the way of the older civilizations? The immense increase in the area of civilized activity today, so that it is nearly coterminous with the world's surface; the immense increase in the multitudinous variety of its activities; the immense increase in the velocity of the world movement—are all these to mean merely that the crash will be all the more complete and terrible, that the answer will be in the negative? But of this we can be certain, that we shall not go down in ruin unless we deserve and earn our end. There is no necessity for us to fail; we can hew out our destiny for ourselves, if only we have the wit and the courage and the honesty.

Need Many Qualities.

"We, the men of today and of the future, need many qualities if we are to work well. We need, first of all and most important of all, the qualities which stand at the base of the individual, of family life, the fundamental and essential qualities—the homely, everyday, all-important virtues. If the average man will not work, if he has not in him the will power to be a good husband and father; if the average woman is not a good housewife, a good mother of many healthy children, then the State will topple, will go down, no matter what may be its brilliance of artistic development or material achievement. But these homely qualities are not enough.

"There must, in addition, be that power of organization, that power of working in common for a common end, which the German people have shown in such signal fashion during the last half century. Moreover, the things of the spirit are even more important than the things of the body. We can well do without the hard intolerance and arid intellectual barrenness of what was worst in the theological systems of the past, but there has never been greater need of a high and fine religious spirit than at the present time.

"I wish you well. I believe in you and your future. I admire and wonder at the extraordinary greatness and variety of your achievements in so many and such widely different fields; and my admiration and regard are all the greater, and not the less, because I am so profound a believer in the institutions and the people of my own land."

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER IS A HERO TO HIS CHAUFFEUR

CLEVELAND, O., May 12.—"The nervest man I ever drove a car for," is how Walter Sisley, John D. Rockefeller's former chauffeur, yesterday described the millionaire a-motoring.

"Rockefeller always places absolute confidence in his driver," continued Sisley. "He never becomes excited or worried when his car gets into a traffic pinch or is running over dangerous roads.

"One time last winter, in New York, when we were driving over icy roads, Mr. Rockefeller stuck to the car after three guests riding with him got out, owing to the danger."

JONES DECLARES HEALY HAS NOT INVOLVED OTHERS

Circuit Attorney Asserts Rumors of a Confession Are False.

SHORTAGE IS $100,000

Former Secretary Believed to Have Admitted Corruption of 20 Years' Standing.

Circuit Attorney Jones, in a positive statement, Thursday morning, described as "poppycock" the volume of rumors which have sprung from the four prolonged conferences behind closed doors between himself, John M. Healy and President Reynolds of the Police Board.

The Circuit Attorney, "speaking truthfully," as he phrased it, made the following assertions:

Healy is making no confession, but has consented to answer questions which might throw more light upon the Police Relief Association muddle.

Although he has been interrogated concerning the 11 former officers of the association now under suspension, he has supplied absolutely no evidence which would tend to incriminate any one of them.

No $100,000 Shortage.

A morning newspaper story, relating that Healy had revealed a shortage of $100,000 and would send a number of "men higher up" to the penitentiary, is "a pack of lies from start to finish."

So far, no evidence has been adduced that would lead to the indictment of a single man.

Healy's revelations, up to the present, have been worthless to the State and the situation in the Relief Association investigation is exactly the same as it was before the conference began.

No promise of immunity has been made to Healy, but in case he is able to supply information of value, he will probably be treated lightly at his trial.

Involves No Others.

Healy arrived at the Four Courts alone at 10:50 a. m., Thursday, and went at once to the Circuit Attorney's office. Judge Reynolds appeared soon afterwards and joined him. Before beginning the conference, Jones declared he had a statement to make.

"The newspapers have been guessing about this," he said, "and guessing wrong. Healy has not told of any $100,000 shortage, he has produced no mutilated or missing records, he has involved no one in the crime with which he is charged.

"Healy has expressed a willingness to answer certain questions, and it was my duty, as the official charged with prosecuting him, to put these questions to him, and permit him to answer them.

"The questioning will probably last a week longer. You remember that it took the grand jury two weeks to find the indictments against him.

"Healy's unsupported testimony against anyone would be of no value whatever before a jury, as he is discredited, being under indictment for embezzlement."

SCANLAN OPPOSES USE OF FAIRGROUND BY AVIATORS

Lambert's Plan Not Feasible Now, Says Park Commissioner.

Park Commissioner Scanlan says he will oppose the use of Fairground as an aviation field for amateur or professional exhibitions.

"I have told Councilman Lambert," said Mr. Scanlan to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "that he could not have my approval of his plan to establish an aviation course in Fairground. I should be glad to see local aviators and the professionals who are to fly here next fall have a course in one of the parks, but there are excellent reasons why the city cannot allow it.

"We are just now moving with all haste to beautify Fairground. Shrubs and grass are being planted, the drives and walks are being laid, the lakes are being sunk and other such work is in progress. To stop operations for even a week would greatly delay the opening of the park. We would have to remove materials and spend time in shaping the course.

"Besides those considerations, the charging of admissions to a public park would not be lawful. We can't collect fares on our miniature railway, and it is hardly likely that we could legalize the payment of money for entering our park."

Lambert's proposition is to turn over to the city the net proceeds from aviation meets after all expenses are paid. The grounds would be open to the public when not in use.

TESTS SHOW TAIL OF COMET WON'T ENDANGER EARTH

Students Placed in Tanks of Cyanogen Experience Little Discomfort.

ALARM IS NEEDLESS

Scientists Declare French Experimenter's Fear Is Foolish Superstition.

St. Louis students of astronomy were surprised Thursday to learn that experiments were being made at Columbia University, New York, to determine what harm might be done to the population of the earth if the tail of Halley's comet contains as much cyanogen gas as one French astronomer fears it may have.

In the big chemical laboratories of Columbia University, hoods were filled with cyanogen gas in different density and volunteer students were placed in one hood and then in another, where the density of the gas was greater. It was found that the gas would have to be extremely dense to wipe out life. The more severe tests caused temporary collapse and headaches to the volunteer students. The experiments seemed to show, however, that if the gas was suddenly increased to a certain density, death would be instantaneous.

Worried by the alarming story printed in a morning newspaper, many persons called the Post-Dispatch by the telephone to learn whether they would be in any possible danger May 18. The comet's tail will brush the earth May 18.

No Cause for Alarm.

"It is nothing short of foolish superstition to imagine that we are going to be in any danger from the comet's tail," said Father Martin S. Brennan, who has given the comet and its possibilities for harm close study for years. "The population of the earth would not even know it was passing through the tail of the comet if it had not been so advised by the astronomers. There will be no visible manifestation of the fact."

"The question is not worth a thought," said Prof. C. A. Waldo of Washington University. "The tails of comets are so attenuated that their influences are entirely negligible. Just remember that you can see through the tail of a comet for millions of miles and then you will know how much danger you will be in May 18. A slight fog will cut off one's vision in a few feet, but you can look through the tail of a comet just as if there was no tail. And as far as affecting the senses of residents of the earth, May 18, Halley's comet will have no tail."

Frenchman Is Pessimistic.

Just when the comet will disappear from the eastern sky in the morning and appear in the eastern sky in the evening is a matter of speculation.

"The turning point for the rising and setting of the comet," says Prof. Joseph Wiczewski of St. Louis University, "is about May 18. Until this date the comet rises earlier than the sun, and is therefore seen as a morning star; after this date it sets later than the sun and will hence be visible as an evening star. The comet is now on the west of the sun. After May 18 it will be on the east of the sun."

The comet will rush past the earth next Wednesday at 11 p. m. It will be seen in the western sky in the evening as soon after that date as it gets away from the glare of the sun.

BODY OF WOMAN IS FOUND IN RIVER; "J. B." ON BRACELET

Also Wore Eye-Glasses and Was Well Dressed—Believed to Be a St. Louisan.

The body of a well-dressed woman, apparently 30 years old, was taken from the river at Kimmswick, Mo., Wednesday night. There was nothing on the body by which it could be identified, but it is thought a link bracelet, bearing the initials "J. B." may furnish a clew.

The woman had black hair, but the body had been in the water so long that it was impossible to get a description of her features. A pair of gold-rimmed glasses were intact on the nose when the body was taken from the water.

The clothing is held by Deputy Sheriff Oscar Taubold at Kimmswick for the inspection of persons who wish to try to identify it. It consists of a brown fur, a tan jacket with lace collar, buttoned in front; a black silk waist with lace sleeves, a black silk skirt with two rows of buttons over the shoulder, a black silk ribbon belt, union suit of underwear and patent leather shoes, No. 4. There was a gold crown on one of the upper left side teeth, but all lower teeth were sound.

After an inquest the body was buried at Kimmswick. It is thought to be the body of some St. Louis woman who killed herself.

120 EMPLOYES GIVE SURPRISE BANQUET TO MORRIS GOLDMAN

Guests Are Seated at Table When Host Gets Home to Dinner.

The employes of Goldman Bros., furniture dealers at 1002-8 Olive street, gave Morris Goldman, a member of the firm, a surprise banquet at his home. The affair was attended by the 120 employes of the store, and was arranged so quietly that Mr. Goldman knew nothing of it until he went home at 6:45 p. m. and found them all seated at the table.

The big dining room looked like a great flower garden. His friends and employes who attended presented him with the flowers. Several speeches were made and telegrams read from 48 persons who were invited. The banquet was unique in many respects. It was given May 3.

MRS. VANDERBILT HURT WHEN CAR SMASHES HER MOTOR

Accident Several Days Ago Just Made Public in New York.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The public learned for the first time today that Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt is convalescing at her Fifth avenue home from painful injuries received several days ago in a collision between her automobile and a street car.

According to friends of Mrs. Vanderbilt, she had a narrow escape from more serious injury. Her automobile was crossing an uptown street at a moderate speed when the street car bore down upon it.

The chauffeur increased his power to avoid being hit, but the car struck the middle of the automobile, crushing in one side and hurling Mrs. Vanderbilt into a corner of the machine. She was cut by flying glass and bruised, but her injuries were not of a dangerous nature.

German Woman Cured Herself of Stomach Disease

Here is her sincere story—all who have stomach misery should profit by it, she writes:

"German people generally I believe have some species or symptoms of stomach trouble, and I wish it was in my power to let such sufferers know of the virtues contained in MI-O-NA stomach tablets. Several years ago I was tricken with stomach trouble. In 1906 I had terrific pains in my stomach. My stomach was tender to touch and seemed to be inflamed, and there was a sourness or water brash that bothered constantly.

"I can give MI-O-NA the very strongest kind of a recommend, in fact its use cured me."—Mrs. Emil Rothbacher, 861 Fourth St., Monroe, Mich.

Mi-o-na, the remedy that cured Mrs. Rothbacker, is a scientific preparation for indigestion and all stomach ailments, and has made and is still making thousands of lasting cures throughout America.

There is no stomach disease (even catarrh of the stomach) that it is not guaranteed to cure, and the makers have so much faith in Mi-ons for stomach disorders of all kinds that they will refund your money if it does not cure.

Mi-o-na, the faultless prescription, stops sour stomach, belching of gas, distress after eating, heartburn, biliousness and nervousness very promptly.

DISCUSSION IS VALUABLE.

The President's expectation that congressional tinkering will not ruin the railroad bill may not be disappointed. The House's amending knocked out two objectionable features of the measure—the pooling and merger clauses. On the other hand, the bill was improved by the insertion of a provision for the physical valuation of the railway properties by the Interstate Commerce Commission. In the final determination of reasonableness of rates it is essential that the commission have a knowledge of the actual value of the railroads. The information will be useful in the just solution of railway problems.

The provisions designed to prevent the watering of stock by railroad companies is desirable. The control of stock and bond issues lies at the foundation of sound railroad regulation for the protection of the public from dishonest stock-jobbing and from unreasonable charges.

The obvious danger of the special Commerce Court, which is the President's idea, is the opportunity it offers for a concentration of influence to control it. Special courts for the trial of special cases involving special interests always invite special influences. But the court can be protected by the chief executive and the effect of this court will be to expedite the settlement of legal questions growing out of railroad regulation.

For the rest the enlargement of the powers of the commission and the freedom of the shippers is desirable. But the final form of the bill will not be determined until it passes the Senate. The hope that its best features will be retained and its worst eliminated rests chiefly with the insurgent element. The Aldrich contingent will accept anything pleasing to the President and not displeasing to the railroads.

Since "my friend Roosevelt" struck Berlin the Kaiser's ruling combination is a trinity.

JUSTICE FOR THE TEACHERS.

The School Board's resolution asking the Superintendent for a schedule of teachers' salaries "that shall as nearly as possible give as good compensation as is paid for similar service in other cities having the best schools," foreshadows a favorable response to the petition of the public school teachers for an advance of salaries.

Dr. Simon, the author of the resolution, estimates the advance on this basis will be about 20 per cent, which is only 5 per cent below the increase asked by the teachers. The increase is just, and, as the Post-Dispatch pointed out, in urging the board to grant the petition, the basis of equality with the pay of teachers in cities having the best schools is necessary to preserve efficiency in our schools. We commend the School Board for its wise policy of assuring St. Louis the best teachers by adopting the best pay schedule.

The superb school buildings which distinguish the St. Louis public school system would be of little value without a corps of first-class, enthusiastic teachers.

The new police sensation has the merit of promising an early explosion if not a quick recovery. Let us hope.

A CASE OF SCOUTING.

What is the matter with the "Boy Scouts of America?" What also is the matter with their grand commander in chief, Mr. Ernest Thompson Seton, or Seton Thompson, as a nature lover?

There must be something. It must be serious. Otherwise Grand Commander Thompson Seton would hardly think it worth while to try to escape from the United States into the District of Columbia.

As far as known, no state has attempted to regulate, restrain or otherwise interfere with the Boy Scouts of America. They can follow Commander Seton Thompson wherever the love of nature calls. They can wrap themselves in their blankets and sleep outdoors without interference from the anti-trust laws. No state regulation against combination in restraint of trade restrains them from building Indian tepees and dancing the sun dance around them. They can ride bronchos and pick up their hats from the ground at a gallop; they can lasso coyotes and count their teeth for magazine articles. They can romp through nature or hold communion with her in her quiet moods anywhere between Maine and California, with none to molest them or make them afraid. Yet Mr. Seton Thompson or Thompson Seton is now reported in Washington, applying for Federal incorporation for the Boy Scouts under the Archbold theory that there can never be peace in the United States without it.

What's the matter with Seton Thompson and the Boy Scouts, when they go scouting in Washington in this way? What is all this sort of scouting in Washington about, at any rate?

WORSE THAN DISCORD.

In a speech to the Democratic editors of the Fourteenth Congressional District former Gov. Francis said:

"I feel angry every time I look at the Governor's mansion in Jefferson City and realize it is occupied by a Kansas Republican."

Angry with whom? Gov. Hadley did not put himself in the Governor's mansion. The people of Missouri did not vote him there without cause. What was cause? Where can we seek it except in the party which lost the confidence and support of its former faithful followers.

Why did the people desert the Democratic party?

Gov. Francis should have analyzed the record of his party organization. He could have found ample cause there for the anger of honest Democrats. He would have found the proof of the betrayal of the party and the people to the forces of organized greed and corruption. He would have found convincing evidence of secret deals between the party bosses and the corporation agents, with concealed campaign contributions and bargains for vicious legislation and official spoliation. He would have found the proof of the party organization's subservience to the corporation lobby. The people were sold out to the spoliators.

Anger will not turn the Republican Governor out of the mansion in Jefferson City. That requires party reformation and the regaining of public confidence. Strong as the rising Democratic tide seems to be, it is not strong enough to save the party in this State from another defeat without a proof of thorough reorganization in the people's interest. Mr. Francis deprecates party discord as the worst menace, but there is something worse than discord, and that is harmony of the party organization and the plutocratic bosses.

There is some comfort for the municipal employes in the statement that they will not have to wait quite a month for delayed pay, but there ought to be no delay. Cannot the Kreismann administration work out a memorable reform in pay-day promptness on the part of the city?

THE KING AND HIS OATH.

King George V is a surprise. Out of the obscurity in which he lived as Prince of Wales, almost unnoted in the court of his father and with a reputation as a stupid reactionary, George comes to the throne with an immediate manifestation of personal force of a high order. He has declared himself unwilling to take the royal oath as it has been administered since the days of the old religious wars. He wishes Parliament to eliminate from it every expression of sectarian animosity. He would have the oath express the loyalty and the fidelity of our times rather than that of the past. As he is to be sovereign of an empire in which dwell many millions of worshipers of the most diverse creeds, there are high reasons of state, as well as of justice, why he should not in his oath of office express devotion to one and abhorrence of another.

To many Americans the proposed change in the royal oath may seem a little thing, but it is not so. The new King shows a marked degree of courage, as well as of toleration, in demanding that in this respect at least the old order shall give place to the new. It is clear, then, that the king has been misjudged. Whatever conservatism or lack of self-assertion may have marked him as Prince of Wales, it is evident that as King and Emperor he is to be neither a weakling nor a reactionary.

The densest gas about the comet is that which fills the public mind with false alarms concerning danger to the earth. The tail of the comet is not as solid as a whiff of clover a mile from the meadow.

THE GAME OF WAR.

While philosophers dream of peace and the industrial world works for it, the rulers of Europe and of Asia plot war and drill their subjects into preparation for battle. Once upon a time the people of the United States looked upon these standing armies with indifference, seeing no menace in them. That time has gone by. It is known the Germans have devised plans for a possible invasion of our Atlantic coast; that the Japanese have done the same for our Pacific coast. It is understood we must be ready to meet attack. So our military authorities have begun to study the war game on a large scale. An account of it will be given in the Magazine section of the Post-Dispatch next Sunday.

Perhaps the most interesting feature of the article, to the general reader, will be the revelation it makes of the importance of maps in modern warfare. War is no longer a simple issue of bringing two armies face to face and letting them fight it out. The war game is not a matter of sham battles, but of the skillful marching and massing of men at strategic points. How that is studied in the "game" will be explained in the Post-Dispatch article. As these maneuvers are to constitute one of the striking features of the news of the summer, it will repay every intelligent person to read the article, so as to have a clear conception of what is to be undertaken and how the question of victory is to be decided.

It is impossible for nature to blanket the Mississippi Valley with any one kind of weather, and while we are having rainy days down here, it is so dry in Minnesota and Wisconsin that forest fires are raging in many localities.

Dr. Samuel Levy of Pittsburg says that of the 14,000,000 men in this country about 3,000,000 are unfit to marry; but the estimate is doubtless based solely upon experiences in his home town.

If the Chicago grand jury would let that of Springfield attend to the legislative bribery scandal, it could probably find something equally juicy in the affairs of its home town.

Sad is the heart of Teddy, for instead of dashing through London like a cowboy, he will have to stalk mournfully along as ambassador to a funeral.

Because the Postoffice Department changed the name of Bromley, Ok., to Wahshinkap, the Postmaster resigned; his local patriotism revolted against a name he could neither pronounce as his home nor swallow as his breakfast.

Hereafter when the Lords and the Commons cannot agree, they can stand aside and let George V do it.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Expert Knowledge on Municipal Affairs.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The Milwaukee Socialists went to the University of Wisconsin and asked a few questions of the men who had made a study of such subjects and who knew where the literature that holds the best thought of the world on municipal subjects could be found. The professors took a look at that problem as submitted by the Socialists and found it was as possible to apply scientific methods to the solution of a problem today as to one of two thousand years ago. They discovered that the laws of arithmetic applied to municipal expenditures as well as to the orbits of the planets.

About the first results of their calculations was that it would be possible to save the city of Milwaukee a half-million dollars a year and still accomplish all that is done at present. This will go a long way toward answering the question, "Where are the Socialists going to get the money to carry out the things they promise?"

It would be interesting to speculate upon how much would be saved to the city of St. Louis by the application of the wisdom of the university to the present administration. O. L. VERTZ.

For Public Comfort.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Reading the news item (1000 drinking cups for dogs) reminds me of the necessity for a few drinking fountains and, going further, some retiring places for women and children in the business section of St. Louis. All men do not care to patronize a saloon when suffering from thirst, and women and children haven't always the necessary coin to purchase refreshments. F. P. BIERI.

Out With the Children.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I would like to have room in your columns to find out where I am. I went to our agent to rent a flat. I told him how many children I had and was even asked ages and sex; paid a month's rent and was given the key; moved in and the day after received notice to vacate at end of second month. Now the folks upstairs claim to have had an agreement when they rented the place when it was new, about three years ago, that no children were to be allowed in the building (for four families.) They claim to have gone to the agent and reminded him of the agreement before we moved in so he could have returned rent and saved us moving. Instead he waited until we were almost straight; then gives us notice. The people above have raised a family themselves and acknowledge we have bothered them none so far (in three weeks), yet insist that their agreeemnt be kept.

Now, I ask some one who knows is it legal to rent to one knowing they have children and then reject them because they have them when they are properly raised and bother no one? Think of the expense as well as work of moving. We were in our last location five years. Our linoleum was cut in half, curtain poles cut down, shelves put in closets; help four days at $1.50 per day, and two loads at $5 each for moving, beside the many small things that always go with a move. Any one can see how unjust this is. I want to know if it is legal. If so can't they be made to even stand the expense they have put one to?

If families who are doing their duty and trying to raise a family of good citizens are to be treated in this manner, where are our 1,000,000 population coming from? From the slums to spend part of their lives in jail for want of good associates and raising, or emigrants from places where children are given the right to live.

ONE WHO WANTS JUSTICE.

For George C. H. Myers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I am in Ward A, 20 M., City Hospital, bed-ridden, and would like my son, Geo. C. H. Myers, to call on me. Will you kindly insert this among "Letters from the People." Am not able to pay for this. Thanking you for your kindness, I remain,

GEO. W. MYERS.

The People Should Elect Senators.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The State of Illinois has taken official cognizance of the alleged legislative bribery. Now the question naturally arises will the bribe-giver and the bribe-taker ever be convicted of the crime of bribery? If so then some of our legislative bodies are guilty of political corruption. Some fellow or fellows must be guilty as accessory before the fact of bribery. When men "higher up" in the Legislature stoop to the low-down arts, tricks and practices of common Chicago "ward politician, boodler and theif," in order to elect a United States Senator to public office, then it is high time that United States Senators shall (in the future) be elected by direct vote of the people and not by the Legislature.

GEORGE A. RITTER.

Pay of Street Laborers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The poor street laborers only get $1.50 a day for their work. It is true they only work eight hours a day, but they have to lose a day to get paid off and have to pay 10 cents a day street car fare which leaves $1.40 a day. Every time it rains the street laborer is laid off say two or three days. There were only 26 working days last month. My husband only made 21 days. Now the last time they paid was the 6th of April. Now they are making us poor devils to wait till the 20th of this month. Is it fair? Do the bosses lose when it rains? No; last month the Street Commisioner laid the poor laborers off three days; besides it rained three days.

A STREET LABORER'S WIFE.

Speed Gear of Automobiles.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It was stated that a certain automobile owner who was recently the victim of his own reckless speeding had his machine geared up to over 60 miles an hour, not being satisfied with the 60-mile speed it had when he bought it. And this was for use in a city's crowded streets! Is there any reason why automobiles should be able to run at such speeds, except on racing tracks? The idea in the mind of a man who would deliberately have his machine geared up in this way must be that the automobile owners also own the streets. Some of our legislators should give us a law imposing a speed limit, especially in city streets, by providing that no machines should be geared above that limit. A machine discovered with a higher gear should be confiscated.

PEDESTRIAN.

HUGHES A RELIEF.

From the St. Paul Dispatch.

Has he (Justice Hughes) the mind and temperament to make the ideal judge? He has been essentially a prosecutor.—Indianapolis News.

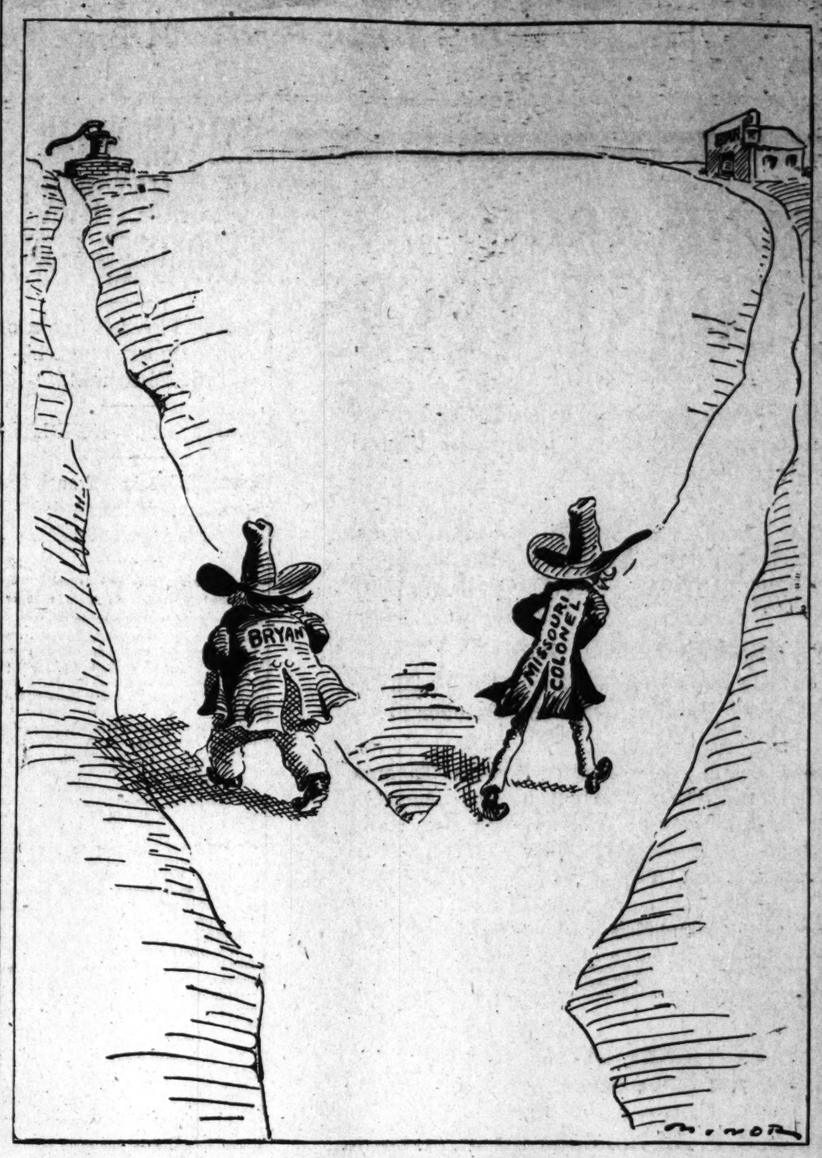

There will be little worry about that. It will be, rather, relief. What the people worried over was fear of the appointment of somebody who had been essentially a defender.

THIS IS THE TRUTH OF IT.

From the Detroit News.

They are talking about a "mothers' day." Why, mother's day is every day; and, in croupy times, half the night.

THE PARTING OF THE WAYS.

BISMARCK'S VIEW OF WOMEN IN POLITICS.

Berlin Dispatch to London Telegraph.

Some interesting observations of Prince Bismarck on female suffrage have just come to light. Of women in politics he said:

"We men are all clumsy. We Germans especially are always ungainly bears, even diplomatists. Moreover, much less would be made public, for a sensible woman's mouth can keep silence. On the other hand, it can draw from an opponent in a tone of harmless chatter many a secret that he would not give up to us men. Woman's mouth chats so ingratiatingly on most difficult subjects that we never notice, old donkeys that we are, that we have told them more than we intended to. For everything that is feminine beats us in cunning."

HEALTH AND GRACE.

From the New York World.

But was not the best part of the Vassar performance the marching and singing of the classes, and the traditional May-pole dance and crowning of the May Queen? The ancient Greeks never undervalued, and the best modern authorities highly praise, those exercises which promote in both men and women health, agility and grace, rather than extreme speed at the possible price of a weakened heart, or massive, muscle-bound strength.

EDUCATION AND EFFIENCY.

From the London Saturday Review.

Nowhere for many years continuously has the education machine worked more untiringly than in London. Yet of the skilled labor of London two-thirds is done by men and women from the provinces, while seven out of every ten dock laborers and 80 or 90 per cent of those who seek refuge in night shelters are London born and bred. What does this mean? Is it merely the fierce competition caused by the compelling attraction of London, with its glitter of wages? Or does it prove some fatal weakness in the London schools?

ANOTHER INSURGENT

From the Oklahoma Oklahoman.

Says Squire Brown: "Ever' time I buy a passel o' goods at th' store, I swar I'm not goin' t' vote no more f'r no man f'r Congres jest b'kase he sends me garden seeds or sez 'Hello, Bill,' t' me when he cums t' town. I won't, by heck!"

MORE IMMUNITY.

From the Washington Times.

The Massachusetts commission's report, holding that import duties have nothing to do with the high cost of living, seems to be another case where the tariff was in the hands of its friends.

BUCKETSHOP METHODS.

From the Washington Star.

Some of the charges as to bucket-shop methods make the gambler who deals off the bottom of the pack seem a comparatively conscientious person.

TRUE HAPPINESS.

From the Chicago Record-Herald.

About the happiest man in the world should be he that, having a fad, is able to make a living at it.

REPUTATION.

From Puck.

Reputation is what enables you to get along in this world when you haven't any character.

THEY say the comet is beyond a doubt
To blame that Spring is rather turned about—
April and May; but be it as it will,
The sun is bunkered and cannot play out.

But yesterday, I think it was—at noon,
I saw him toiling, with his sunbeams strewn
About and by him in the mists and clouds,
And flailing Heaven with his baffy spoon.

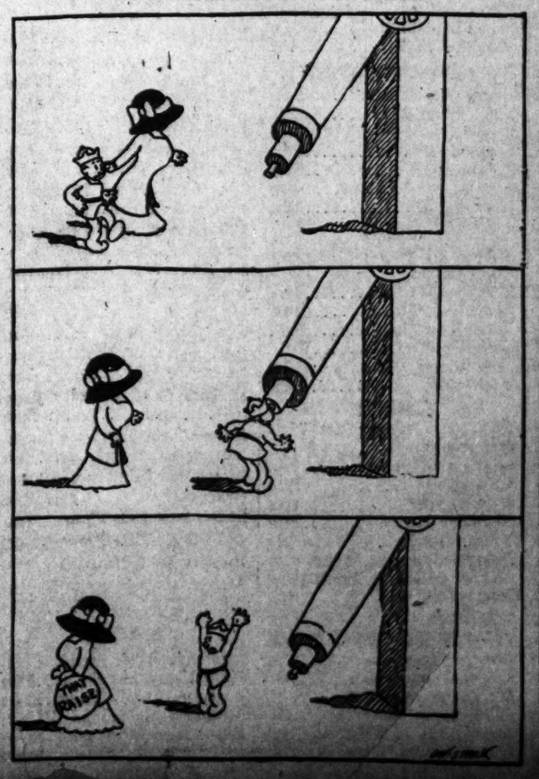

O wasted days and hopes of fairer skies!
One thing at least is certain—this life flies;
One thing is certain, and the rest is doubt—
Or is there golf, perhaps, in Paradise?

Strange, is it not, that what with all our store
Of this and that, and all our worldly lore,
None of us knows if Gabriel, perhaps,
Is or is not this moment crying Fore!

But as I was saying, there is neither May
Nor April. Is it, possibly, the way
In which kind Providence will bust the trust
For what golf balls are selling at today?

Or is it just the cussedness of clime—
The prose that more or less goes with the rhyme
Of hapless Life, the while Day, Month and Year
Putt us in turn around the Clock of Time?

If the fence is entirely on your property you should, at your own expense, maintain and repair it.

READER.—How lands (exclusive of that owned by United States) shall be held by aliens is for the State to say. In Missouri it is unlawful for alien to own and hold lands unless acquired by devise or descent or unless such person has lawfully declared his intention to become a citizen. Kissing Is Safe

Thoughts on Osculation, Written for the Post-Dispatch By NIXOLA GREELEY-SMITH.

(Copyrighted, 1910, by The Press Publishing Co.)

THE practice of kissing, according to Dr. A. M. Worthington of the Harvard Medical School, "does not upset the bacterial balance."

Translated into the vernacular, the statement of the learned bacteriologist is said to mean that the most popular outdoor sport of the summer season is as harmless as it is generally held to be pleasing. Coming just after the announcement that a German chemist at the Pharmaceutical Convntion now in session has invented a process which makes possible the antiseptic salute of the lips, this announcement seems to prophesy a banner season for the summer girl.

For the fearful type of young man, demonstrated by the young physician who told his fiancee that he must refrain from kissing her because she hadn't been boiled, will now be able to avail himself of the kiss pasteurized according to the new German method, while the bolder suitor will go on taking chances on "upsetting the bacterial balance" just as if Dr. Worthington had not said a word.

Of course, the doctors will differ from the Harvard bacteriologist. I know one young physician who has maintained for years that the salute of the lips is a foolish practice without even a physiological excuse.

The nerve-ends in the tips of the fingers are, he declares, much more sensitive than those of the lips, and the logical and sensible thing to do is for two persons in love to place the tips of their fingers together and wait hopefully for a thrill.

The theory is very interesting, but it overlooks the fact that the majority of us are sons and daughters of toil; that one's fingers are more or less calloused by one's employment, and that in order to keep in kissing condition one would have to go around with a bit of sandpaper and a la Jimmy Valentine ("the only man alive who can open a safe by the sense of touch) sandpaper the way to sensitiveness or, as he states it brutally raw nerves.

Historians of the kiss tell of the Fiji practice of rubbing noses and record other forms of salutation not in use among the civilized devotees of the labial salute.

As yet no scientist has expressed an opinion as to whether these modes of greeting are superior hygienically to our own.

It is lucky, however, that Dr. Worthington's indorsement of the native practice should have come at so seasonable a time.

Perhaps the removal of the idea of danger may for some persons tend to take away from the zest of the proceeding.

But the microbes are always with us in other forms and the pasteurized kiss has everything to recommend it.

Reflections of A Bachelor Girl

THE biggest fishes—the sweetest kisses
Are always those that a man—just misses.

When the Lord removed that rib from Adam a lot of his conscience and most of the tender part of his heart must have adhered to it.

The most harrowing thing about introducing your fiance to your girl friends is that you never can tell whether they are wondering how you got him or why you took him.

A man always expects a woman to keep the sacred fire burning on the altar of love and continually to swing the censer, while he dozes through the service.

Near-love, like the paste diamonds, is becoming more and more popular, because a man can't see the object of investing in the real thing when a good imitation will give the same effect and last until the fad passes.

The advantage of a poodle over a husband as an intellectual companion consists in the fact that the dog at least APPEARS interested when you speak to him.

When a woman discovers that her husband is beginning to regard her merely as a "rest cure" after the day's excitement it is about time for her to give him a few doses of absent treatment.

TEMPEST ACT II. SCENE 2.

The House of the Whispering Pines

Greatest Detective Story of the Year

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Elwood Ranelagh, passing the House of the Whispering Pines, a country clubhouse, sees smoke coming from a chimney. Knowing that the house should be untenanted he enters to confront the intruder. He sees beautiful Carmen Cumberland, sister of Adelaide Cumberland, his fiancee, leaving the building. She is weeping and greatly agitated. Ranelagh goes to an upper room in the clubhouse and finds Adelaide dead on a couch. There are finger marks on her throat. He is arrested and charged with the murder. To shield Carmen Cumberland he makes no defense and he does not tell of seeing her leaving the building. The suspicion against Ranelagh is strengthened by the fact that it is known that he planned to slip Adelaide and elope with her sister, Carmen. He is unwilling also to explain why he took off his shoes on entering the clubhouse. A note found in the clubhouse dresses seems to strengthen the evidence against Ranelagh. He cannot explain it without seeming to incriminate Carmen Cumberland. Ranelagh tells his story to the coroner, but in his effort to shield Carmen he leaves out important details. The detective chief tells Ranelagh that one of his men peeping through a window, saw Ranelagh with his fingers on Adelaide's throat. He does not deny it. Carmel Cumberland collapses and her mind becomes a blank. She knows nothing of the arrest of Ranelagh, who sacrifices his liberty for her sake. Clifton, an oted attorney, takes Ranelagh's case. The mysterious disappearance of Ranelagh's wedding ring from Adelaide's finger adds to the complications. To further shield Carmen from suspicion Ranelagh untruthfully tells the police he saw a man driving away from the clubhouse in a sleigh. Though certain that he is concealing the police begin to believe that he is innocent. Sweetwater, a New York detective, is employed by the Prosecutor to fathom the mystery.

CHAPTER X.

AN HALF hour spent with Hexford in and about the clubhouse and Sweetwater was ready for the road. As he made his way through the northern gate, he cast a quick look back at the long low building he had just left, with its tall chimneys and rows of sightless windows, half hidden, half revealed by the encroaching pines. The mystery of the place fascinated him. To his awakened imagination there was a breathless suggestion in it—a suggestion which it was his foremost wish, just now, to understand.

And those pines—gaunt, restless, communicative, ready with their secret, if one could only interpret their language. How their heads came together as their garrulous tongues repeated the tale, which would never grow old to them until age nipped their hoary heads and laid them low in the dust, with their horror half expressed, their gruesome tale unfinished.

"Witnesses of it all," commented the young detective as he watched the swaying boughs rising and dipping before a certain window. "They were peering into that room long before Clarke stole the glimpse which has undone the unfortunate Ranelagh. If I had their knowledge, I'd do something more than whisper."

Thus musing, thus muttering, he plodded up the road, his insignificant figure an unpromising break in the monotonous white of the wintry landscape. But could the prisoner who had indirectly speeded this young detective on his present course, have read his thoughts and rightly estimated the force of his purpose, would he have viewed with so much confidence the entrance of this unprepossessing stranger upon the no-thoroughfare into which his own carefully studied admissions had blindly sent him?

As has been said before, this road was an outlying one and but little traveled save in the height of summer. Under ordinary circumstances Sweetwater would have met not more than a half-dozen carts or sledges between the clubhouse gates and the city streets. But today, the road was full of teams carrying all sorts of incongruous people, eager for a sight of the spot made forever notorious by a mysterious crime. He noted them all; the facves of the men, the gestures of the women; but he did not show any special interest till he came to that portion of the road where the long line of half-buried fences began to give way to a few scattered houses. Then his spirit woke, and he became quick, alert and persuasive. He entered houses; he talked with the people. Though evidently not a dissipated man, he stopped at several saloons, taking his time with his glass and encouraging the chatter of all who chose to meet his advances. He was a natural talker and welcomed every topic, but his eye only sparkled at one. This he never introduced himself; he did not need to. Some one was always ready with the great theme, and once it was started, he did not let the conversation languish till every one present had given his or her quota of hearsay or opinion to the general fund.

It seemed a great waste of time, for nobody had anything to say worth the breath expended on it. But Sweetwater showed no impatience, and proceeded to engage the attention of the next man, woman, or child he encountered with undiminished zest and hopefulness.

He had left the country road behind and had entered upon the jumble of sheds, shops and streets which marked the beginnings of the town in this direction, when his quick and experienced eye fell on a woman standing with uncovered head in an open doorway, peering up the street in anxious expectation of some one not yet in sight. He liked the air and well-kept appearance of the woman; he appreciated the neatness of the house at her back and gauged at its proper value the interest she displayed in the expected arrival of one whom he hoped would delay that arrival long enough for him to get in the word which by this time dropped almost unconsciously form his lips.

But a second survey of the woman's face convinced him that his ordinary loquaciousness would not serve him here. There was a refinement in her aspect quite out of keeping with the locality in which she lived, and he was hesitating how to proceed when fortune favored him by driving against his knees a small lad on an ill-directed sled, bringing him almost to the ground and upsetting the child, who began to scream vociferously.

It was the woman's child, for she made instantly for the gate which, for some reason, she found difficulty in opening. Sweetwater, seeing this, blessed his lucky stars. He was at his best with children, and catching the little fellow up, he soothed and fondled him and finally brought him with such a merry air of triumph straight to his mother's arms that confidence between them was immediately established and conversation started.

He had in his pocket an ingenious little invention which he had exhibited all along the road as an indispensable article in every well-kept house. He wanted to show it to her, but it was too cold a day for her to stop outside. Wouldn't she allow him to step in and explain how her work could be materially lessened and her labor turned to play by a contrivance so simple that a child could run it?

It was all so ridiculous in face of this woman's quiet intelligence that he laughed at his own words, and this laughter, echoed by the child and in another instant by the mother, made everything so pleasant for the moment that she insensibly drew back while he pulled open the gate, only remarking, as she led the way in:

"I was looking for my husband. He may come any minute and I'm afraid he won't care much about contrivances to save me work—that is, if they cost very much."

Sweetwater, whose hand was in his pocket, drew it hastily out.

"You are watching for your husband? Do you often stand in the open doorway, looking for him?"

Her surprised eyes met his with a stare that would have embarrassed the most venturesome book agent, but this man was of another ilk.

"If you do," he went on imperturbably, but with a good-humored smile which deepened her favorable impression of him, "how much I would give if you had been standing there last Tuesday night when a certain cutter and horse went by on its way up the hill."

She was a self-contained woman, this wife of a master mechanic in one of the great shops hard by, but her jaw fell at this and she forgot to chide or resist her child when he began to pull her towards the open kitchen door.

Sweetwater, sensitive to the least change in the human face, prayed that the husband might be detained, if only for five minutes longer, while he, Sweetwater, worked this promising mine.

"You were looking out," he ventured. "And you did see that horse and cutter. What luck! It may save a man's life."

"Save!" she repeated, staggering back a few steps and dragging the child with her. "Save a man's life! What do you mean by that?"

"Not much if it was any cutter and any horse, and at any hour. But if it was the horse and cutter which left The Whispering Pines at 10 or 10:30 that night, then it may mean life and death to the man now in jail under the dreadful charge of murder."

Catching up her child she slid into the kitchen and sat down with it, in the first chair she came to; Sweetwater following her, took up his stand in the doorway, unobtrusive, but patiently waiting for her to speak. The steaming kettles and the table set for dinner gave warning of the expected presence for which she had been watching, but she seemed to have forgotten her husband; forgotten everything but her own emotions.

"Who are you?" she asked at length. "You have not told me your real business."

"No, madam, and I ask your pardon. I feared that my real business, if I suddenly made known to you, might startle, perhaps frighten you. I am a detective on the look-out for evidence in the case I have just mentioned. I have a theory that a most important witness in the same, drove by here at the hour and on the night I have named. I want to substantiate that theory. Can you help me?"

A sensitiveness to, and quick appreciation of, the character of those he addressed was one of Sweetwater's most valuable attributes. No glossing of the truth, however skillfully applied, would have served him with this woman so well as this simple statement, followed by its equally simple and direct inquiry. Scrutinising him over the child's head, she gave but a casual glance at the badge he took pains to show her, then in as quiet and simple tones as he had himself used, she made this reply:

"I can help you some. You make it my duty, and I have never shrunk from duty. A horse and cutter did go by here on its way uphill last Tuesday night at about 11 o'clock. I remember the hour because I was expecting my husband every minute, just as I am now. He had some extra work on hand that night which he expected to detain him till 11 or 11:15. Supper was to be ready at a quarter after. To surprise him I had beaten up some biscuits and I had just put them in the pan when I heard the clock strike the hour. Afraid that he would come before they were baked, I thrust the pan into the oven and ran to the front door to look out. It was snowing very hard and the road looked white and empty; but as I stood there a horse and cutter came in sight, which, as it reached the gate, drew up in a great hurry, as if something was the matter. Frightened, because I'm always thinking of harm to my husband whose work is very dangerous, I ran out bareheaded to the gate, when I saw why the man in the sleigh was making me such wild gestures. His hat had blown off and was lying close up against the fence in front of me. Anxious always to oblige, I made haste to snatch at it and carry it out to its owner. I received a sort of 'thank you, and would never have remembered the occurrence if it had not been for that murder and if'—She paused doubtfully, ran her fingers nervously over her child's head, looked again at Sweetwater waiting expectantly for her next word, and faltered painfully—"if I had not recognized the horse."

Sweetwater drew a deep breath; it was such a happy climax. Then, as she showed no signs of saying more, asked as quietly as his rapidly beating heart permitted:

"Didn't you recognize the man?"

Her answer was short but as candid as her expression.

"No. The snow was blinding; besides he wore a high collar, in which his head was sunk down almost out of sight."

"But the horse?"—

"Was one which is often driven by here. I had rather not tell you whose it is. I have not told any one, not even my husband, about seeing it on the road that night. I couldn't somehow. But if it will save a man's life and make clear who killed that good woman, ask any one on the Hill, in what stable you can find a grey horse with a large black spot on his left shoulder, and you will know as much about it as I do. Isn't that enough, sir? Now, I must dish up my dinner."

"Yes, yes; it's almost enough. Just one question, madam. Was the hat what folks call a derby? Like this one, madam," he explained, drawing his own from behind his back.

"Yes, I think so. As well as I can remember, it was like that. I'm afraid I didn't do it any good by my handling. I had to cluten it quick and I'm sure I bent the brim, to say nothing of smearing it with flour marks."

"How?" Sweetwater had started for the door, but stopped, all eagerness at this last remark.

"I had been cutting out biscuits and my hands were white with flour," she explained, simply. "But that brushes off easily; I don't suppose it mattered."

"No, no," he hastily assented. Then while he smiled and waved his hand to the little urchin who had been his means of introduction to this possibly invaluable witness, he made one final plea and that was for her name.

"Eliza Simmons," was the straightforward reply; and this ended the interview.

The husband whose anticipated approach had occasioned all this abruptness, was coming down the hill when Sweetwater left the gate. As this detective of ours was as careful in his finish as in all the rest of his work, he called out as he went by:

"I've just been trying to sell a wonderful contrivance of mine to the misses. But it was no go."

The man looked, smiled, and went in at his own gate wit; the air of one happy in wife, child and home.

Sweetwater went on up the hill. Towards the top he came upon a livery stable. Stopping in his good-humored way, he entered into talk with a man loitering inside the great door. Before he left him he had asked him these questions:

"And grey horse in town?"

"Yes, one."

"I think I've seen it—has a patch of black on its left shoulder."

"Yes."

"Whose is it? I've a mighty curiosity about the horse. Looks like a trick horse."

"I don't know what you mean by that. It belongs to a respectable family. A family you must have heard about if you ever heard anything. There's a funeral there today."

"Not Miss Cumberland's?" exclaimed Sweetwater, all agog in a moment.

"Yes, Miss Cumberland's. I thought you might have heard the name."

"Yes, I've heard it."

The tone was dry, the words abrupt, but the detective's heart was dancing like a feather. The next turn he took was toward the handsome residence district crowning the hill.

Love and Matrimony

Advice on Affairs of the Heart, Written for the Post-Dispatch. . . . . By BETTY VINCENT.

GIRLS, when one of your friends introduces a man to you and you know that she likes him particularly, do not try to attract his attention to yourself exclusively.

To try to obtain the friendship of any one to the exclusion of another is scarcely a friendly act.

So, girls, do not try to attract the admirers of your chums. Get a few admirers of your own.

H. R. writes:

"I am in love with a girl, and she introduced me to her cousin, who seemed to take a great fancy to me. Now the girl I am in love with insists I care more for her cousin than I do for her. Which is not the case. What shall I do?"

If you have not given the young lady any cause to believe you cared more for her cousin than for her she must have a rather foolishly jealous disposition. You can only reason with her.

G. J. writes:

"I am engaged to a young man whom I almost idolize at times, and yet there are times when his company is a bore. I am not fickle. Do you think I love him well enough to marry him?"

I fear you do not. People we really love seldom "bore" us. But then, from your letter, I imagine you are inclined to consider your own emotions too much. It is possible that you would be bored with anyone.

GAMES THAT WERE TO BE PLAYED ON TUESDAY WILL TAKE PLACE SATURDAY

THROUGH a misunderstanding, the games in the fifth series of the Post-Dispatch Public School Baseball League postponed from last Saturday because of bad weather, which were scheduled for Tuesday, were not played and are scheduled Saturday.

Three of the games scheduled have been played, the Bryan Hill team in the North End Division No. 1 winning from the Harrison team, 7 to 3, and the Garfield team, in South End Division No. 1, defeating the Monroe team, 5 to 2, and the Mann team beating the Froebels, 28 to 11.

In the Bryan Hill-Harrison game, Elroy Odenwalder, who pitched for the winners, was in rare form, striking out 12 opponents and allowing but four hits. The Harrisons' runs were scored on errors.

The results of these games must be in the Post-Dispatch office before 6 o'clock Saturday, in order that the manager may learn which teams in the four divisions will play for the supremacy of the whole division in the final games.

Unexpected difficulties prevented the game between the Penrose and Farragut teams from being played Tuesday, but it will be played Saturday morning at Athletic Park.

To Those Who Suffer With Piles

Don't go on suffering from month to month and year to year, constantly endangering your general health to a point where a cure may be impossible, when you, like hundreds of others, can come and be cured.

You take no chances when you place your case in my hands. I have not made a single failure in over five hundred consecutive cases. That record I am proud of. My patients are astonished because so many extremely bad cases come to me after they have tried every known remedy, and many other physicians, without obtaining a cure, and many times without getting even temporary relief. My treatment is mild and reliable. I apply it and treat every patient personally, which largely accounts for my universal success in the cure of Piles, Fistula and Fissure and all similar diseases.

Strong Evidence of Success.

The fact that in so many cases I treat two, three and as many as four members in a single family is itself a strong recommendation. Common sense tells you that this would not be so unless I had given entire satisfaction in every case.

When afflicted, the first thing you want to know is, can you be cured? The next is, what will it cost? Is the treatment painful? How long will it take to effect a cure? Will the cure be permanent? When do you pay, etc.? For answers to these questions I refer you to my former patients. Call and see them or write to them; they will tell you. Then come to me and I will tell you. Can you ask anything fairer, with reference to payment, than to pay me after you are cured? You can deposit the fee we agree upon in the bank, payable to me only after you are cured, and you are the judge.

Ladies.

I have under my treatment all the time almost as many ladies as gentlemen. Those of you who are afflicted should not go on suffering, but come and be cured. Send for my FREE 68-page Book for ladies. It will be of great value to you.

Men should send for my FREE 236-page Book. The information it contains will be worth much to you.

Read the following letters; they are only a fair sample of hundreds I have on file and publish in my books. I also have just as good letters from every one whose name I publish in this advertisement.

Remember, I guarantee a cure, in every case I accept, and do not require one cent of my pay until you are cured.

M. NEY SMITH, M. D.

Mr. Collom's general health improved wonderfully after being cured of his troubles.

Limestone, Tenn., May 16, 1906.

DR. M. N. SMITH,

Dear Doctor: I am now as sound as a dollar. After you cured me of the Piles, my terrible indigestion and diarrhea both ceased, until I am having better health than for years, I eat any food and as much as I want. I am no longer the emaciated skeleton I was when I went under your treatment, but weigh 178 pounds instead of 130.

Your tender, faithful care and kind attention, as well as the new acquaintances made while under your treatment, constitute a bright page in my life.

Your true friend,

R. N. Collom.

Mr. Heckman's general health has been excellent since being cured of Piles.

St. Louis, Mo., March 24, 1909.

Dr. M. Ney Smith, City.

Dear Doctor: In about two weeks' time you entirely cured me of Piles of several years' standing, and my health has been excellent ever since. I would advise the afflicted to take advantage of your skill and be cured.

Edward Heckmann

Home address, Electra, Tex.

St. Louis, Mo., March 24, 1907.

Dr. M. Ney Smith:

Dear Doctor: I will state for the benefit of other sufferers from Rectal troubles that you cured me of a Fistula of ten years' standing. I had been treated by several noted physicians, all of whom told me that I would have to be operated on. A friend sent me to you, and in just twenty days I was cured without suffering any pain. I have had no return of the trouble.

Yours truly,

Al. J. Bastian

PROTESTANTS OPPOSE KING'S MODIFICATION OF HIS OATH

Government Must Amend Declaration Through Parliament if George Stands Firm.

Copyright, 1910, by Press Pub. Co.

LONDON, May 12.—All the Protestant societies are arranging meetings to protest against alteration to the accession declaration. The Times admits that the Catholics have a grievance, but says there is not time enough to put an amending act through Parliament at this session.

It was rumored in the lobby today that King George had flatly informed Prime Minister Asquith that he would not make a declaration in the present form. If that is so, the Government is bound to force a bill through Parliament.

It is recognized on all hands that there may be seeds of great trouble in the King's action, unless the Protestant societies can be mollified.

REPUBLICANS NOT ALL AGREED THAT PARTY IS DIVIDED

Speech by Senator Cummins Replying to Taft, Arouses Criticism by Colleagues.

MAY QUIT IF HE LIKES

Right of Iowa Insurgent to Read Others Out of the Ranks Is Denied.

Cummins Declares People Are Behind Present Movement

"THE sooner we realize that this division in the ranks of the Republican party is not ephemeral, the sooner we appreciate that it is a movement of the people, the sooner we will become conscious of a great and everlasting truth."—From Senator Cummins' Des Moines Speech.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Senator Cummins' speech at Des Moines Tuesday night, in which he declared that the split in the Republican party was real and not ephemeral, is taken here as a direct answer to President Taft's speech at Passaic, N. J.

In that speech Taft referred to "Republicans of that radical type that are entirely out of sympathy with the more conservative notions of the East."

Senator Cummins, insurgent leader and typically representative of the type of Republicans "entirely out of sympathy with the conservative notions" of Senators Aldrich and Hale, answered back.

The words of Senator Cummins, taken with the speech of Senator Dolliver on the same platform, drove the Republicans of all brands in Congress to the refuge of "compromise." Some said that Cummins was reading himself out of the party; all denied that there was a split. The President said nothing.

What Republicans Have to Say.

Those Republicans who would talk expressed themselves as follows:

Senator Smoot of Utah: It is impossible to keep Cummins in the party if he wants to go out. There is not a split in the party. I am sure that as soon as the people get well acquainted with the new tariff law they will say it is the best one the country has had. I believe that when the railroad bill and the postal savings bank bill are out of the way, the party will be as solid as ever. I think the men who have been criticising the tariff will in eight years be asking for more protection.

Senator Borah, Idaho: There is a great big split among the people—a split which extends across parties to principles. There is a line of cleavage which marks a line of thought of two classes of people. On the one hand many people think the industrial questions will be worked out in themselves, while on the other hand the rest of the people think there must be Government legislation and control of the large industries. This has necessarily caused a split in all parties, and it is a split which will not heal in a day.

Senator Heyburn, Idaho: I do not think there is a split in the real Republican party.

Election Might Mend Breach.

Senator Burnham of New Hampshire: Of course, there are individual differences of opinion, especially on the railroad bill and the tariff. There are those commonly known as insurgents, who call themselves progressives and the party men who follow the Senate and House leaders who are known as reactionaries. Between these two elements there is a split. They have radically different views. The insurgents do not agree with the Senate and House leaders, but I am sure that if there was a presidential election both these factions would line up one way. There will be, however, a wider breach in the Republican party if the radically different views are not switched around to nearly the one direction.

Senator Kean of New Jersey: Well, I guess Cummins thinks he knows what he is talking about.

Senator Burrows of Michigan: I don't know of any split. There are a few who are dissatisfied with the tariff, and some who do not agree over the railroad rate bill, but I think they will all come around when we get in front of the common enemy.

Senator Page of Vermont: I think there is now, and will continue to be, a better feeling among ourselves.

Representative Fordney of Michigan (Regular Republican): The so-called Republicanism of Cummins and La Follette is not Republicanism, as I understand it. I have no sympathy with the insurgent movement or with insurgency. I do not consider the followers of their doctrines as Republicans at all. They are really a Cummins and La Follette party.

"Rule or Ruin" Is Decried.

Representative Stevens of Minnesota (Regular Republican): I don't quite see the force of Senator Cummins' argument. There is a diversity of views among Republicans in Minnesota, but we are all working for one thing up there—the perpetuation of Republican principles—and the men who think one way within the party and the men who think another way are all working for the party. This "rule or ruin" policy is a favorite one with Senator Cummins, but he can't split the Republican party on an argument.

Representative Foster of Vermont (near-insurgent Republican): I am not pessimistic about the alleged split in the ranks of the Republican party. I think that the movement is going to result eventually in progress and to the advantage of the party. For the present we are beset with more or less strife. In the end we shall find a middle ground, upon which to realign the party as a whole. There is no doubt that there is widespread dissatisfaction over the Payne-Aldrich tariff law. It is not an intelligent disapproval altogether, but it is a disapproval that is just as potent in New England today as it is in the West. I believe that the result of this present contest will be that the extreme protectionists will have to step down from their position, just as half a generation ago the free traders had to forsake their extreme stand.

Representative Kinkaid of Nebraska (insurgent Republican): What Senator Cummins seems to consider a split in the Republican party is something that we have not noted in the State of Nebraska. Diversity of views within the party is the right of the members of any party. There is no split in Nebraska.

Representative Fassett of New York (regular Republican): It seems to me that this statement of Senator Cummins that there is a split in the Republican party must be taken as his own view of the case. It is his personal announcement. I have always insisted that no one has a right to read anybody out of his party except himself. One may regard this statement as Senator Cummins' own resignation from the party if he wants to make it such.

(insurgent leader): He argues that there is no irremediable split in the Republican camp, and that out of the party differences an adjustment will be found "on some middle ground of honest compromise that is not a compromise with honesty."

Neither Senators Aldrich nor Penrose would comment on the accusation made in Dolliver's speech that they were prejudiced in fixing duties on copper and rubber and their products.

It has for many years been known that Aldrich is interested in rubber and that Penrose is vitally concerned about copper. The development of the rubber industry in various Central and South American republics has admittedly been under the control of a corporation in which the son of Aldrich was a dominating factor.

Senator Penrose has a millionaire brother in Arizona whose fortune has rested largely on the successful operation of copper mines. The Senator is said to have profited by these enterprises; he has more or less co-operated in the projects of his brother. It has been frequently said that he has large investments in the Utah Copper Co.

INSIDE PLAY IN BIG LEAGUE BASEBALL

I ALWAYS shall believe that Detroit lost the World's Championship of 1909 either through bad infield signaling or through too much signaling from the bench. Detroit's system is rather intricate and confusing because Jennings continually signals from the bench and the coaching lines.

His signals to batters are given with hands during his famous grass-pulling, and with his legs while doing his famous "E-yah" act. From the bench, however, he uses sometimes spoken words, sometimes signals with his hands. I may be mistaken and some of his men wrong in charging the Tiger leader with the fatal blunders of the series. He may have given orders and the pitchers may have failed to get the ball where he wanted it to go, or the Pittsburg players may have performed the seemingly impossible and hit balls in the wrong direction. However that may be, Leach upset the entire defensive infield work of the Tigers. On three occasions, Moriarity was running in fast when Leach, who was at bat, drove the ball past him, and once Bush was moving to cover second when the ball went down "the groove." Four of Wagner's long hits in the series were to left field and two of them at least were made off balls that were ordered to be pitched outside whether they were or not.

It is rather unfair to criticise infield work by exhibitions given in a series in which every man is strained to the limit and with numerous crowds cheering and restricting the playing space, but the inside work of both Pittsburg and Detroit in the series was ragged and seemed to be wrong on many occasions. On two occasions Bush and Delehanty were going in opposite directions when the ball was hit.

The Double Steal.

THERE is no play on the diamond in which the importance of infield signaling is so openly demonstrated to spectators as when a runner on first and another on third base are planning to attempt a double steal, either straight or delayed. When that situation arises shortstop and second baseman exchange signals deciding which shall cover the base and which shall "cut in," which means meet the throw before it gets to the base in order to return it to the catcher immediately should the runner at third start for home. Almost every team makes the play solely with regard to the strength of arm of the shortstop or second baseman and the throwing force of the catcher. If the shortstop has a "whip" strong enough to throw back the full distance, he covers second and the second baseman guards his territory. If either has a weak arm the other runs in to meet the throw. Every player watches sharply for the exchange of signals from bench, from the coachers, batter and the basemen themselves, and if the signal is caught the catcher instantly orders the ball "pitched out" high and fast in the best position for making a fast, hard throw.

To show how closely the two teams watch each other in that situation: Cincinnati was playing Chicago with Frank Roth catching for the former team. Runners were on first and third. Roth signaled to the pitcher for a curve; Chance saw the signal and flashed a delayed double-steal order. Huggins caught that signal, the Reds switched positions rapidly, and Roth signed for a pitch-out. The pitch-out signal was detected by Kane, who was coaching, and Chance signaled for a change. The result was the runners held their bases, and the pitcher wasted a ball. Roth signaled again, the infield changed, and Chance ordered the delayed steal. Roth was warned and ordered another pitch-out, but no sooner had he flashed that signal and Chance had ordered another wait, than Roth ordered a fast straight ball pitched, thinking to out-guess Chance. But as Roth changed his signal Chance, guessing he would do exactly that thing, signaled a hit and run, with the result that a base hit tore through the infield and broke up the game.

Danger of the Play.

THE great danger to the defense on the double steal is that unless a pitch-out is certain both the shortstop and second baseman are running to a line between home and second base and gaps 35 feet wide are left on both sides of the pitcher if the batter elects to hit. Consequently, if the attacking team decides to play hit and run instead of the double steal, and the defenders have been led to expect an attempt at the latter play, the chances of the batter hitting are tripled.

Late in the season, after the men know each other and the opponents perfectly, the infielders frequently discard the signals, having become so familiar with the plays and the style of making them that they know exactly what to do without signaling. Evers and Tinker of Chicago play entire games with looking at each other except when an unknown batter comes up to hit.

But to get back to that millionth of a watt and the geometry of the game. The average "fan" thinks that about four out of every batter hit fly balls. Managers growl all the time for the batters to "hit" 'em on the ground," the theory being that more hits go safe on the ground than in the air. It is true more runners reach first base on ground hits than on fly balls, but the percentage of safe hits largely favors aerial batting. This is because so many grounders are fumbled and so few flies muffed.

This involves another study of angles, and an entirely new departure in infield defensive work. To discover what proportion of balls are hit on the ground, I took a mass of score books and classified 10,000 batted balls, every team in the National and American Leagues being represented in the figures. Really I scored 10,074 plays, because the number ran over unexpectedly and I did not know which 74 to deduct. Of them, 3602 were fly balls, 5171 were grounders, 344 were bunts and 957 line drives, as distinguished from flies. Of the 3602 fly balls, 747 fell safe and only 18 were muffed, which shows that the fielders catch almost everything they get their hands upon. Of the 5171 ground balls, 424 were scored hits. Of the 344 bunts, 155 went safe, and of those 155 the fielders got their hands on 114. Of the 957 line drives, 741 resulted in safe hits.

A Few More Statistics.

BUT to show the ground-covering ability of the infielders further calculation is necessary. In scoring, I place a small "T" above hits I believe too hard to handle, and a small "D" over hits which are doubtful either through bad bounding of the ball or other cause. Of the 424 hits through the infield, 162 were marked "T" and 49 were marked "D." So the players reached the ball 211 times and failed to field it; and of the 213 times the ball went through untouched 46 were plain hit and run plays in which fielders were going the wrong way, in other words, blundering or being out-generaled by the batsman.

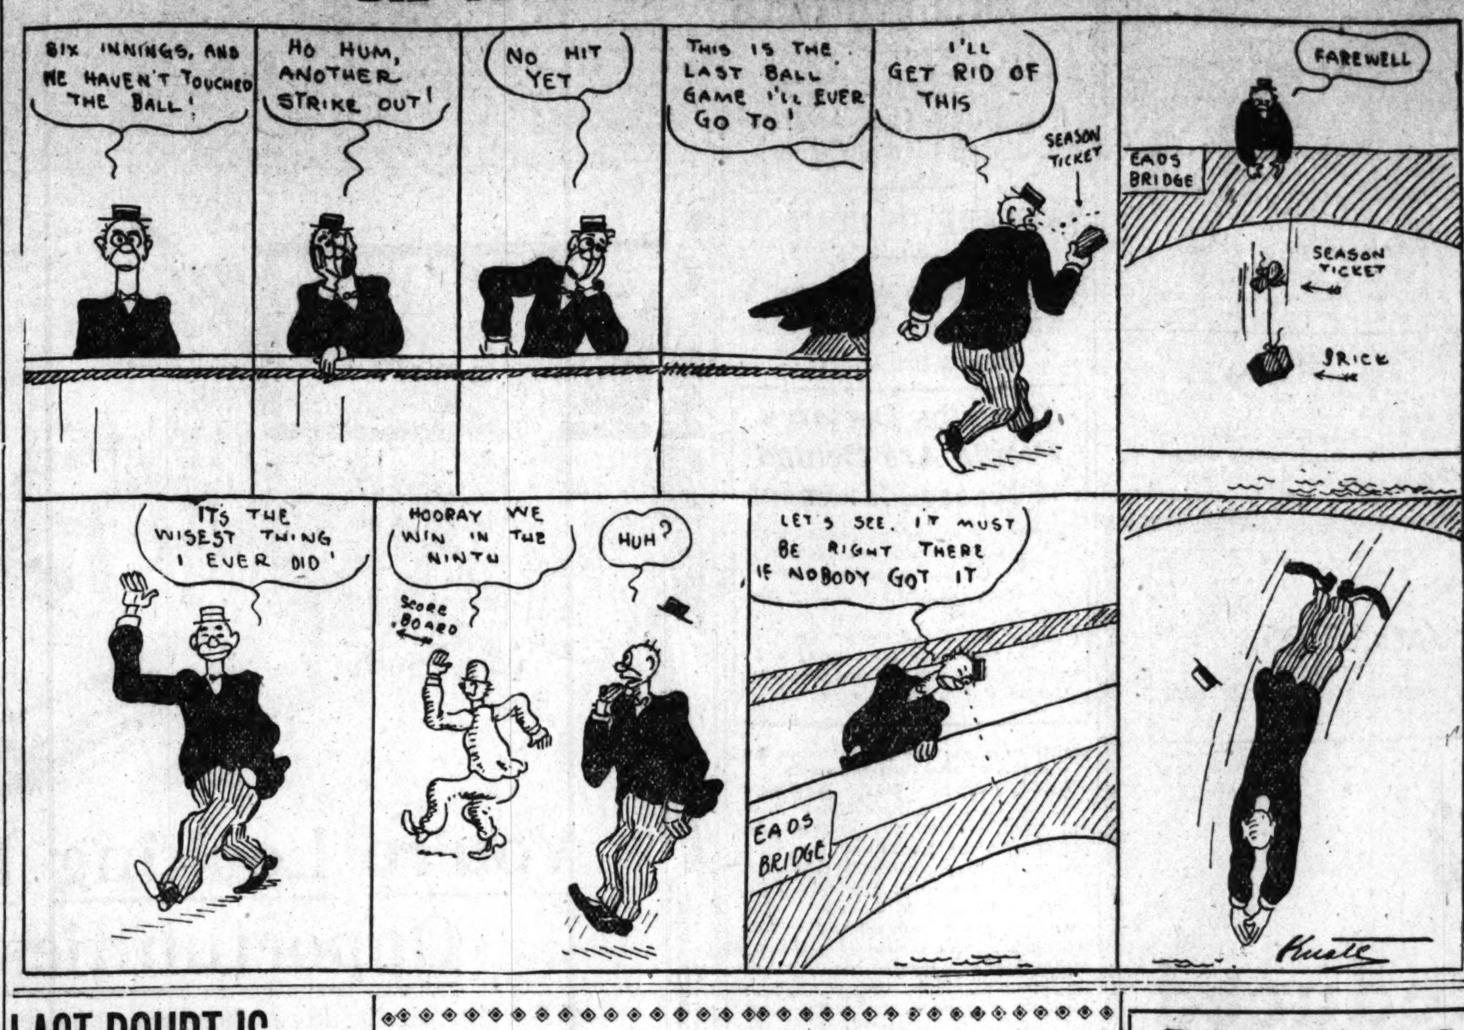

Out of the 5171 grounders the players actually reached all except 213, or about .041 per cent., whereas on the natural chances of covering the ground they should have reached only about 800 per cent instead of 959 per cent of batted balls. The figures seem to show that by team work they were enabled to get in touch with 159 per cent more batted balls than the geometry of the diamond would indicate.

The geometry of the game becomes more complex the deeper it is studied. Not only must the players on the infield know when to start in a given direction, but they must know exactly what angle to take to meet each ball. Further, they must change the angle to meet the running speed of each batter. If, for instance, "Larry" McLean of Cincinnati hits the ball, a second baseman will run backward, his path and the path of the ball meeting in an acute angle. If Miller Huggins is the batter he will run forward, making the lines meet in an obtuse angle. Moreover, they know to a nicety just where they must meet a ball of any given speed, and they start there almost instinctively. Oddly enough, the men can go much faster toward certain points than toward others, even when they are of equal speed, and they can, if they judge the speed of the ball and the runner, close up the gaps still further by reaching the spot in the ball's path toward which they can travel fastest. But all that is mechanical and habitual. It is the inside game which calls the brain into play to extend the reach of the arms.

Therefore, as Mr. Euclid, who invented diamonds, would say: If X covers 24 feet with his arms and legs and 18 with his brain, Y, the base runner, is out, provided Z, the umpire, does not call him safe. Q. E. D.

DID IT EVER HAPPEN TO YOU?

NO SALARY FOR BROWNIES NOT IN CONDITION

Loss of Twelve Straight Causes Owner Hedges to Frame New Rules for the Club.

THE loss of 12 straight games by the Browns has not discouraged President Robert L. Hedges of that outfit, but it has set him to thinking and he has framed a couple of new rules to go into effect next season.

Hedges has a world of confidence in Jack O'Connor, the manager. He is not blaming O'Connor for the poor showing the team has made, as he realizes that O'Connor is running a team that was constructed by another man. O'Connor really didn't sign a single member of the squad he now has in tow. He was only partially responsible for Bill Abstein's presence on the team.

The most important rule that Hedges is to put into effect is that hereafter none of his ballplayers are to draw a cent of salary until they are physically fit to play.

It is believed that George Stone's tardy reporting to the team this season caused Hedges to take such action. Stone refused to sign during the winter because his salary was chopped. He held out until a few days before the real season was to start, sidestepping the six weeks training in the South. When he did show up, he played; but he was in poor condition. As a result, he was directly responsible for the loss of a couple of games.

Hedges is unable to make a player report for the training season. Still, if any of his members hold out until the season commences, he can hold off their salary until the manager says they are in condition to play. It is believed that this action will cause each and every player to be a trifle more interested in his physical condition hereafter, now that the dollars are not to be paid out until he is in fit shape.

Hedges does not care to pass judgment on any of his players right now. He blames a batting slump for the failure of his team to win. However, he plans to wait until the second Eastern invasion of his club.

If by that time the team fails to respond, there is going to be a wholesale change in the makeup of the team. And Hedges is not going to wait until next season to make these changes. If the present Browns do not come up to Hedges' expectations by midseason, he plans to put a lot of new players on the job. They will be worked together during the fag end of the season which will give O'Connor a line on the talent from which he is to compose his 1911 outfit.

"I think my team is really a better aggregation than it has shown, and I believe O'Connor is a better manager than nine-tenths of the men now handling clubs in the big leagues," stated Hedges to the Post-Dispatch. "For that reason I am not howling about the poor showing. Of course, I have a slight kick, as everyone expected the Browns to play better ball than they have shown—rather to win more games.

"But a temporary hitting slump, which can't last forever, has struck the boys. They should soon overcome that and then I think the team will win. There's no reason in the world why players like Hartzell, Schweitzer, Griggs, Stone and Hoffman shouldn't hit. Wallace is really the only player who is batting above .250 and the world knows that mark isn't to boast of."

Hedges plans to get out himself within a week or ten days on a scouting trip of the Southern Association. It's too early yet to pick out ballplayers for next season, but the Browns' owner doesn't want to let any good ones slip away from him, simply through oversight. He announces that he has scouts employed in the American Association, Southern Association, Eastern, Western, Tri-State, Pacific Coast and Three I leagues.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 12.—"The ball is up," the old skating signal by which the city park managements used to notify their patrons of good skating, will soon be heard on baseball fields in Pittsburg. Postponed games have disappointed so many patrons that a method of notification became necessary. When a game is scheduled a big white flag with a distinctive center will be displayed from one of the highest buildings in the city. Immediately upon the postponement of a game the flag will be lowered.

LAST DOUBT IS GONE, IS JEFF'S LAST BULLETIN

Former Champion Says He Has Turned Hard Corner of His Training.

BEN LOMOND, Cal., May 12.—Jim Jeffries is not a grouch. The big fellow says so himself. It cropped out in a chat with correspondents yesterday that Jeffries resents being characterized as a bear, gorilla and other representatives of the animal kingdom.

"It is kind of mean the way I am being held up as a sour-tempered fellow," he said. "I don't think I'm anything of the kind. People don't stop to think what I've been up against. What with having my stomach disarranged by the strain of taking off surplus weight, and the stiffness and setbacks which go with early training, I guess I have not been the pleasantest fellow in the world, but I don't think I have been any worse than any other man would have been under the circumstances."

Following his fast and shifty workout in the ring, Jeffries shared with his trainers their elation over his showing. He felt so good that he talked with the volubility of a schoolgirl. "I am around the bend in the road now," he declared. "I am thoroughly limbered up, and my stomach is all right again. I have taken off the surplus weight, and from now on road work won't figure so much in my schedule.

"If I ever had a doubt about being able to get into condition—and I don't say I had—that doubt is gone. I know that I'll be ready to fight when the time comes, and I want my friends to know that I never remember feeling any better than I do right now."

Madden Sells Famous Mare.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The famous brood mare Fanella, star of the John E. Madden stable at Hamburg Place, has been sold to George G. Moore, owner of Dramore Farm, St. Claire, Mich.

WRAY'S COLUMN.

RUBE WADDELL is coming home—in fact he's due here Friday. Tiem was when there might have been a curious crowd awaiting to cheer the eccentric one at the station. But now the Reuben's arrival will cause the same enthusiastic demonstration as that with which a score board crowd greets a visiting team's rally.

Perhaps it should not be held against him; but it is a fact that even in the act of getting hurt Rube has disappointed the St. Louis public deeply. But for this crowning piece of carelessness, Hedges could have completed a deal to get rid of Rube to advantage.

Ingrate!

Calm Before the Storm.

COMPLACENT Messrs. Rickard and Gleason appear to be resting quietly in Morris chairs, burning up Carolina Perfectos with the reckless abandon used by a shell game proprietor in returning $5 for $1 invested, utterly regardless of a storm brewing.

Said storm is the protest against the "big battle" by the element that has never seen the esthetic side of a prize fight and can not, therefore, appreciate the attractions others delight in.

Briefly, the promoters abide confidently in the statements of the Governor of California and the officials of the county in which the Jeffries-Johnson battle is to take place, that it is not their province to interfere in the matter; that it is a matter of issuing a license which the State recognizes, and which is paid for.

On the Other Hand.

THIS is true. It is also true that there remains the injunction as a weapon in the hands of the opposition. This obtained, it only remains for enemies of the fight to show cause why the injunction should not be made permanent.

There is a chance that this can be done; for the law of California, so some legal light has stated, provides for the issuing of permits to hold boxing bouts, not prize fights, which are prohibited in another statute.

It would require very little demonstrating to show whether the proposed affair is to be a boxing match or a fight. A writ could be had compelling the submission, as evidence, of the articles of agreement. These would show at once that there was a prize offered, and that a championship was at stake—which would seem to settle this point.

It is hoped that this matter will not come to pass. But let not Messrs. Rickard and Gleason take the matter too supinely—there is a chance of serious obstruction being placed in the path of the promoters.

Public in Favor of Bout.

THE public wants this contest to take place. Those in favor of the bout would probably outnumber the opposition several times, if it could be put to a test of franchised voters. The stopping of it will keep $5,000,000 from changing hands in various economic ways other than by wagering.

But there are forces that can be brought to bear against it even stronger than the good wishes of the public and the Governor.

One Local Near-Champion.

PERHAPS, after all, in these weary days when we turn our eyes apprehensively toward the baseball score for fear of reading of another casualty, we may find consolation in possessing one champion, or near champion, here in St. Louis, next Saturday.

On this occasion we can rest from the labor of trying to discover what's the matter with our baseball teams, and watch the M. A. C. and visiting athletes struggle over the 26 miles 385 yards which is now accepted as the distance traveled by that mythical Greek soldier when he dog-trotted from Marathon to Athens. The pick of the West is to enter this event, including Sidney. Hatch, who three times has disposed of our best—yes, even our own Joseph Forshaw.

This year, in the person of Joseph Erxleben, it appears that St. Louis has the makings of a real champion. Erxleben won the M. A. C. event last season over the full course in 2 hours 49 minutes. He says he will beat this time 10 minutes in Saturday's race. If he does he will have come within one minute of the world's outdoor record for the distance, made by Ljungstrom, the Swede. This was made on a perfectly level running track, with no obstructions, no hills and with soft footing for the tired feet.

Freeburg Course Rugged.

THE Freeburg course here is something of a terror. It is uphill and downhill, over rocks and city granite. So that if Erxleben lives up to his hopes he will have done a greater trick than the Swede did in the Marathon derby.

Erxleben's time is better than that of Hayes, in the British Olympic event. Hayes did the trick in 2:55:18. It is also better than that of the little Canadian, Sherring, who won the Olympic event over the original Marathon course at Athens, in 2:51.

Hatch has never competed in the M. C. A. race since it has been extended to the full course. Every time he captured first place it was at the original distance of 25 miles.

Erxleben is but 21 years old, and his rise has been within the last two years—consistent, if plodding. He has taken part in all distance runs over lesser routes, but has lacked the sprint at the finish—his one fault.

Ketchel to Take on Flynn.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Stanley Ketchel has been matched with "Porky" Flynn, the Boston middleweight, for a 12-round bout before the Armory Athletic Association, next Tuesday night.

¶ The trunk decoration is inevitable.

¶ The "decoration" of yourself on the eventful day is invariably a Dress Suit or a Frock Suit —a Dress Suit, if 'tis a night affair—or a Frock Suit, if 'tis a daylight function.

¶ In either case—daylight or candlelight—you feel that the best attire is none too good. That's why you should prefer our tailoring for the important raiment. That's why we make nearly three-fourths of all the Dress Suits and Frock Suits made in St. Louis, by the way.

Off-Day Chat

Both teams were at League Park, Wednesday, prepared to play, but the slight shower just before game time caused Manager Bresnahan to call off the matinee.

"Rube" Geyer, the $4500 purchase from the Columbus (American Association) team, is still far from being ready. His arm won't respond. However, the Lancaster boy is of that type of ballplayer that needs the sunshine. He promises to live up to all the nice things said about him when it gets warm.

Arnold Hauser hasn't been hitting since he succeeded Rudy Hulswitt at short, but Manager Bresnahan says he isn't planning any change in the lineup of his team as long as it continues to play good ball.

Hulswitt is working out daily with the team and is coming along nicely, according to the Duke.

"This fellow Criss is a great hitter," says Manager Lake of the Doves. "Every time he went to bat against the Red Sox last year, I always slipped my pitcher the sign to pass him. There's no telling how far that big fellow would slam the ball."

Martel, the catcher, who was playing first base for the Doves prior to Lake's acquisition of "Bud" Sharpe from the Pirates, is the former Philadelphia receiver. He was left at home.

The "Jints," from New York, follow the Doves. They play four games with ex-Giant Roger's boys.

The new score board is erected at a poor angle. From the grand stand the numbers are very indistinct.

Harry Smith, the Doves' leading catcher, was manager of the team last season. This year he's Lake's first lieutenant and is hustling hard.

Tom Lynch is in Cincinnati. He's due here next. Wonder what Roger will tell him?

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

Mighty Wagner Now Batting Like a Pitcher

Think of it! Hans Wagner is batting .197!

In seventeen games played this season the mighty champion of all players —with apologies to Mr. Comiskey and other experts who take the Ty Cobb view—has not been able to terrorize pitchers at all. Save for one brief flash against the Cardinals—of course it is always St. Louis that must suffer—he has not shown anything of that form which breaks up so many games.

S.S.S.

BEST SPRING TONIC

Every one should take a tonic in the Spring; our systems require it. The change in the seasons produces a like change in our bodies, and more is required of the blood, from which source we receive physical nourishment and strength, at this particular time than at any other.

Almost every one feels bad in the Spring. Some have no particular sickness, but are debilitated, run-down and weak, and their systems are in a general state of disorder. This deranged condition of thehealth is due to weak, anaemic blood; the circulation is infected with impurities which have diminished its natural nourishing powers, and the body is suffering from deficient blood nutriment. The refuse and impurities which naturally accumulate in our systems are not properly expelled in Winter, because those members whose duty it is to perform this work of drainage do not receive sufficient stimulation from outdoor exercise, and therefore grow dull and sluggish in their action; nor is the skin as active in eliminating waste maters in cold weather because the pores are not so open as in warm seasons.

These Winteraccumulations pollute the blood and largely destroy its nutritive qualities, and when Spring comes, and everything takes on new life, and we change our method of living, the circulation is so weakened that it is unable to supply the increased demands of the system. Then we suffer from weakness, nervousness, loss of appetite, lassitude, etc. There is a constant worn-out feeling, sleep is not refreshing, and we do not feel able to perform the ordinary duties of daily life. This disordered condition demands the use of a tonic, and it should be one which has the additional qualities of a first class blood purifier, for to restore health and strength the blood must be pure.

The healthful botanical ingredients of which S.S.S. is composed, and the method of combining and preparing them so that they build up and strengthen every portion of the body, make it the best of all Spring tonics. S. S. S. is Nature's medicine, free from strong mineral mixtures and made entirely of the healing, cleansing juices and extracts of roots, herbs and barks; a safe and pleasant tonic for persons of any age.

S. S. S. is not only the best Spring tonic, but its ability and worth as a genuine blood purifier is universally recognized. It builds up the depleted system in the true way, by purifying the blood and supplying an increased amount of nourishment to every portion of the body. S. S. S. removes all accumulations from the circulation, enriches and purifies the blood and overcomes the unpleasant physical ailments that always come with Spring. It rids the body of that tired feeling, improves the appetite, reinvigorates every fibre and tissue of the body, and imparts healthful energy to all who are run-down. The body cannot be strong and well if the blood is weak or impure, and no tonic should be used which does not thoroughly cleanse the circulation. If you select S. S. S. as your tonic this Spring you will experience better results and more vigorous health than ever before, because it will make your blood "just right." Insist on getting S. S. S., there is no other "just as good." THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

PRETTY GOOD EVIDENCE.

I have used S.S.S. and found it to be an excellent blood purifier and tonic. My blood was weak and impure, and as a result my system became very much run down and debilitated. I lost twenty or more pounds in weight, had no appetite and was in bad shape. Seeing S. S. S. advertised I began its use, and am well pleased with the results after using it for some little while. From 139 pounds to 165 is pretty good evidence of merit on the part of S. S. S., and as to my appetite, it is superb. My system and general health have been wonderfully built up, and I do not hesitate to give S. S. S. the credit for it. H. MARTIN, 50 Second St., Warren, O.

Post-Dispatch's Complete Daily Record of Markets and Finance

CHANGES SMALL IN N. Y. STOCKS AT THE CLOSING

Price Range Fractional Throughout the List; Market Is Quiet.

NEW YORK, May 12, 12:30 p. m.—The sagging tendency at the opening was continued throughout the forenoon. Trading was unusually slow and price movements in either direction were fractional.

Colorado Fuel, Erie, Missouri Pacific, Laclede Gas and North American had not opened at noon.

Anaconda, Utah Copper and Lead lost ⅛ each, Steel common ½, Amalgamated and Smelting ⅜ each. Consolidated Gas and Steel preferred were at parity.

In the rails section, B. & O. and Great Northern declined ⅛ each, Canadian Pacific, Pennsylvania and Wabash preferred ¼ each, N. Y. Central and Rock Island ⅜ each, C. & O., St. Paul, L. & N., M., K. & T., Union Pacific, Reading and Southern Pacific ⅛ each. Northern Pacific advanced ⅛ and Rock Island preferred ⅞. Atchison and B. R. T. were unchanged.

Call money was qouted at 3⅞ per cent, and the total sales to noon aggregated 204,000 shares.

The stock market opened lower today. Several of the leading issues were unchanged, a few were advanced, but a large majority of the list receded from the closing figures. In nearly all instances the losses were of an insignificant character, averaging about ¼ point. The early trading was unusually slow.

In the industrials, Amalgamated and Utah Copper lost ⅛ each, Steel common ¼, Smelting ⅜ and Consolidated Gas ½ point. Am. Car and Foundry gained ⅝. Anaconda, Colorado Fuel and Lead were inactive.

In the railway list Atchison advanced ⅛ and Pennsylvania 1 point. Reading and M., K. & T. declined ⅛ each, St. Paul and Union Pacific ¼ each, B. & O. and Northern Pacific ⅜ each, L. & N. and So. Pacific ½ each and Rock Island preferred ⅞.

B. R. T., Canadian Pacific, C. & O., N. Y. Central, Rock Island and Wabash preferred were unchanged. Erie, Great Northern and Missouri Pacific were inactive.

In the first half hour's trading price movements were irregular. Reading, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific and B. R. T. were fractionally advanced, while Rock Island, Wabash preferred, L. & N. and C. & O. lost a small fraction each.

Steel common and Amalgamated declined ¼ each and Smelting remained at its opening.

Reading was much the most active stock on the list and there was also considerable trading in Northern Pacific and the Harrimans. English consols were 3-16 lower and American securities in London were heavy and mostly under parity.

DETAILED REPORT OF DAY'S TRADING ON WALL STREET

NEW YORK, May 12.—Opening prices of stocks today sagged a small fraction with a small volume of transactions. The only important exception was Pennsylvania, which rose 1. Pullman lost ¾.

The market was extremely apathetic and unresponsive to any development. The increase in the Brooklyn Transit dividend was received with indifference the stock losing its earlier advance. The general tone became heavy in sympathy. Pittsburg Coal preferred lost 2⅛, Chicago Great Western preferred 2⅜, Brooklyn Union Gas 2¼, Hocking Coal and Colorado & Southern 1¼, and American Smelting and American Steel Foundries 1. Mackay Companies rose 1¼ and American Linseed preferred 1¼. Bonds were steady.

Operations were insignificant and prices were in keeping with the restricted dealings. Amalgamated Copper was weak, losing ⅝. Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg lost 10; Louisville & Nashville and Rock Island preferred 1, and Chicago Great Western preferred 1¼.

The persistent weakness of the copper stocks and the general neglect of the buying side furnished a motive for selling the whole list. Consolidated Gas lost 1⅜. Union Pacific 1⅜, Reading, Erie second preferred, Amalgamated Copper and Southern Pacific 1¼ and St. Paul, Atlantic Coast Line and Anaconda 1.

By the time supporting orders became effective, the decline had been considerably extended at many new points and the resultant rally failed to lift the leaders more than a moderate fraction. Chesapeake & Ohio, Great Northern preferred, Colorado Fuel and United States Rubber yielded 1 and Southern Railway preferred 1¼.

Time money was more active, there being some improvement in demand. Supply was sufficient. The longer periods were the favorites with borrowers. Rates showed greater firmness, being 4 per cent for 60 and 90 days, 4@4¼ for four months, 4¼ for six months, 4¾ for over the year.

ST. LOUIS MONEY MARKET

The actual lending rates at the present time are 5 to 6 per cent in the extreme.

Some of the country banks are putting out funds locally at the first-mentioned rate, and all good collateral is quickly snapped up at 5 per cent. However, some of the local loans were marked up by one or two banks which have been experiencing particularly active calls from their clients. Deposits are somewhat higher than they have been in some days, although this conditions is not assurably permanent.

LIBERAL BUYING POWER SENDS COTTON TO NEW HIGH LEVELS

NEW YORK, May 12.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 2@6 points and quickly increased the gain to a matter of 4@9 points, with all old crop months selling into new high ground for the movement on a renewal of the demand from shorts. The new crop continued relatively quiet, but seemed to be attracting a little more demand from commission houses.

Slight reaction occurred during the middle of the morning, but the market firmed up again in the later forenoon on a continued demand from old crop shorts and fresh buying of the new crop inspired by the forecast for continued dry weather in the Southwest and light frosts in the northern part of the Eastern belt. Prices at midday were about 12 to 13 points higher.

RAILROAD NEWS AND GOSSIP

Wabash-Pittsburg Terminal bondholders profess not to be alarmed by the withdrawal of the bankers in charge of the Wheeling & Lake Erie reorganization who have been considering in connection therewith the reorganization of the Wabash-Pittsburg Terminal property. Their withdrawal would indicate that the owners of the Wheeling $8,000,000 notes under which the $12,000,000 Wheeling general mortgage bonds are deposited as collateral will proceed with the foreclosure of the Wheeling mortgage and the subsequent sale of the pledged property.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The Financial World says: "The failure of the Pennsylvania directors to declare an increased dividend did not come as a surprise, despite the gossip current for weeks previous of such a possibility. The conservatism of the directors of this magnificent property is proverbial. They are not paying out more in dividends than the property can comfortably stand, and still leave a good surplus. The road recently authorized an increase in wages amounting to nearly $10,000,000 annually, to take care of which is a provision the directors no doubt kept in mind. Then also, a desire to see what increased business the New York terminals could be depended upon to produce was also a check upon what desire there may have existed at this time to enlarge the dividend rate. The increase eventually will come. The strength of the stock exhibits that confidence."

WHEAT MARKET IS QUIET IN TONE; PRICES HIGHER

There was very little business in the local wheat market Thursday. Prices were confined to a narrow range and moved narrowly therein. Offerings were light, and a steady tone, with prices fractionally higher, prevailed in consequence, but there were no new features, and the market in general lacked interest.

Some precipitation was shown in the winter wheat belt, but moisture was still lacking in the Northwest, where it is most needed. There were many unfavorable reports regarding the spring wheat crop. These were the principal inspiration of a firm opening and furnished the chief cause of a quiet but absorbing demand that was in force during the forenoon.

Cables were relatively steady, though most foreign markets lost the bulk of their early advances. Liverpool was effected early in the day by the previous American firmness, indications of light shipments from Argentine and a fair spot demand. Prices in the English grain center advanced about ½c, but that market, like most others, was later depressed by very heavy offerings from Russia. Liverpool closed only ⅛d higher.

Following the liberal profit-taking among the longs of the previous day, the market was rather oversold, and shorts were disposed to cover. This constituted most of the buying power in the pit, but it was made productive of a firm tone by an almost total lack of demand.

May wheat opened ⅛c higher at $1.12, this being the only early sale. July wheat opened ⅛@⅜c higher at $1.02, advanced to $1.02⅝, and sagged to $1.02¼@1.02⅜. September wheat opened ⅛c to ¼c higher at $1.00⅜ to $1.00¼, and advanced to $1.00⅝.

LIVESTOCK.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., May 12.—Comparative receipts:

	Today.	Week Ago.	Year Ago.
Cattle	3,500	2,700	2,100
Hogs	12,000	6,700	7,000
Sheep	2,000	1,800	7,000
Horses	50	50	150

NATIVE CATTLE—There was another pretty good run today, but the supply of steers was moderate and the quality rather ordinary. The market held steady, with two beeves bringing $7.45. Movement a trifle slow. Cows and heifers somewhat plentiful and trade in them inclined to dullness. Prices ruled a shade lower.

SOUTHERN CATTLE—Again the receipts were late getting in, this having a tendency to prolong the market. Offerings were above the average for so late in the week, the supply amounting to 1500 head, mostly Texas stock. Some good steers from that State brought $6.75, the top of the market. Good cattle ruled steady, while the common kinds displayed an easier feeling.

HOGS—A liberal supply of hogs arrived and the market naturally opened on a lower basis. The decline on the early market was 15c but later in the day there was a loss of about another 5c, making the close 20c lower than the average of yesterday. The top of the market was $9.60 and the bulk of the good hogs sold from $9.40@9.50. Shippers and butchers were the best buyers early, but later the packers were operating freely so that the market closed with the supply well cleaned up. Best lights 125 to 160 lbs. sold at $9.10@9.45, best pigs 110 lbs and under $9.00@9.30 while common to medium pigs and lights sold at $6.50@8. The poorer grade pigs and lights found a very dull draggy trade all day.

SHEEP—The spring and clipped lambs were on a steady basis but sheep showed another loss of 10@15c, so that it takes the very best clipped native sheep now to sell at $7, and right goods ones went this morning at $6.70 @6.90. Best spring lambs are still selling at $9.25@10, clipped native lambs $8@8.50, and two double decks of Colorado lambs that were clipped sold at $8.60. Stockers and all thin sheep are poor sellers. Bucks were again 25c lower and most of them are now going at $5.25.

A LINIMENT FOR EXTERNAL USE.

Baby's coming will be a time of rejoicing, and not of apprehension and fear, if Mother's Friend is used by the expectant mother in preparation of the event. This is not a medicine to take internally, but a liniment to be applied to the body, to assist nature in the necessary physical changes of the system. Mother's Friend is composed of oils and medicines which prepare the muscles and tendons for the unusual strain, render the ligaments supple and elastic, aids in expanding the skin and flesh fibres, and strengthens all the membranes and tissues. It lessens the pain and danger at the crisis, and assures future health to the mother. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores. Write for our free book for expectant mothers.

JOB CAME AFTER CARPENTER HAD KILLED HIMSELF

Charles Fearst Sought Work Vainly Two Weeks, Then Drank Carbolic Acid.

WIFE SAW THE END

As Body Was Awaiting Burial Contractor Arrived With Offer of a Place.

After walking the streets of St. Louis daily for two weeks in a vain search for work, Charles Fearst, 57 years old, a carpenter, living at 1301 South Fourteenth street, killed himself by taking carbolic acid. Had he waited another day, the job he had so patiently sought would have been his reward.

A contractor to whom Fearst had applied for work found need for another man. When he went to the Fearst home Wednesday to summon him to the job, Fearst was dead. He had been unable to bear the worry of his wife, who sympathized with him and said to him Tuesday night, "I am sorry you did not find a job today, Charlie."

The funeral was held Thursday. The members of the Carpenter's Union had charge.

Sought Vainly for Work.

Two weeks ago Fearst lost his job in the Municipal Courts Building. Every morning since then he took his lunch and went to look for work. He was prepared to begin immediately if he found a job. Each night he returned home disheartened, but, encouraged by his wife, he went out the next morning to continue his efforts.

"Charlie was a good worker, and was faithful in his search for a job," Mrs. Fearst told a Post-Dispatch reporter as she tried to hide her tears. "He was despondent, but he could not bear to see me worry and did his best to hide his troubles from me.

"He had never indicated his intention to end his life until I spoke to him in an effort to cheer him Tuesday night and said I was sorry he did not find a job. He told me not to worry, and looked as if he was fighting to suppress some emotion. I can understand it now. He could not bear to see me worry.

Drank Poison in Home.

"He left the supper table and got a glass. He poured something into it and drank it. I realized then that he could bear the burden no longer. I ran to Dr. Demmler's office and summoned him, but it was too late. Charlie died a few minutes later.

"If Charlie had only waited until Wednesday morning he would have been at work again. A contractor to whom he talked Tuesday came for him. I took the man into the room and he identified my husband as the man he met on Grand avenue looking for a job, and said he had promised him the first opening. He had come to keep his promise, but he was too late."

MICHAEL ELMORE, PIONEER RAILROAD BUILDER, IS DEAD

Was Friend of W. J. Bryan and Spent Fortunes Aiding Hobos.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 12.—Michael Elmore, pioneer railroad builder of the West and close personal friend of William Jennings Bryan, is dead at his home here. During the 30 years he spent in the Western states he was engaged in construction work on practically all of the transcontinental trunk lines.

Elmore superintended the building of a large part of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul's extension over the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific coast. He owned thousands of acres of ranch lands in Wyoming and Nebraska and a large stock farm in Missouri. He was a breeder of race horses and the mules from his Missouri farm have been supplied for the armies of several of the European powers.

Throughout the West and Northwest Elmore was known as the "friend of the hobo," and he is credited with having given away several fortunes to homeless and unemployed men who appealed to him for financial assistance.
